Convict Asks Tourism Aid

EDMONTON (CP) — A man who describes himself as an "Edmontonian" away for a few years has asked the Alberta government to help him settle an argument with some new acquaintances.

The man, Prisoner 28723 at the federal penitentiary in Stikine, B.C., requested brochures and pamphlets to convince his fellow-convicts that Canada is not a land of leeches, igloos and wild west cowboys.

Caouette Announces Creditistes Party

QUEBEC (CP) — Real Caouette, deputy national leader of the Social Credit party, emerged from a meeting with 14 Quebec Social Credit MPs Wednesday night to announce that a new party, the Ralliement des Creditistes, has made its appearance on the national scene.

"Eventually we will attempt to make this a national party and take it across Canada to protect French-Canadians in every province," Mr. Caouette told a press conference after a four-hour meeting.

BAR SUPPORT

He said he had the support of 13 Social Credit MPs, named 12 and said one is to be announced later.

A few minutes earlier, two Quebec MPs, who earlier announced their support of National Leader Robert Thompson of Social Credit, walked out of the caucus of Quebec members called by Mr. Caouette as leader of the Ralliement, until now the Quebec Social Credit wing.

FOLLOWERS

Mr. Caouette said the following supported him: Charles Gauthier, Roberval; Gilles Gervais, Lapointe; Gerard Paron, Beauce; Gilbert Rondeau, Sherbrooke; Gerard Laprise, Chateaufort; Pierre Boutin, Dorchester; Henri Latulipe, Compton; Robert Beaulieu, Quebec East; Charles Dionne, Kamouraska; L. P. Boulanger, Charlevoix; and Raymond Langlois, Megantic.

Madame Nhu Charges U.S. With Spying

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (UPI) — South Viet Nam's powerful Mme. Ngo Dinh Nhu suggested Wednesday the United States withdraw some of its civilian aid personnel because she has the "impression" that some of them are U.S. Central Intelligence agents.

Madame Nhu, beautiful and sharp-tongued sister-in-law of President Ngo Dinh Diem, told newsmen at a press conference at the Gia Long presidential palace that President Kennedy is incorrect if he assumes that the Diem government has lost touch with the people.

"If President Kennedy really said that... it shows the American government is absolutely misinformed."

Saanich Draftsman Dead at Parksville

Chief draftsman with Saanich municipality, Charles Albert Wigley Goodman, 58, of 828 Pandora, died, apparently from drowning, at Parksville Tuesday night.

Mr. Goodman's body was found floating in about two feet of water at Edgewater Park Auto Camp and was pulled ashore by an unidentified man and woman.

He and his wife, Eva, had just started a holiday at the beach resort.

Canadians May Leave French Soil

OTTAWA (UPI) — Negotiations to provide U.S.-owned nuclear warheads for Canadian CF-104 Starfighter aircraft now based in France are likely to take several months and may end with at least part of the two squadrons moving off French soil, informed sources said Wednesday.

Barring an unlikely change in President Charles de Gaulle's refusal to permit foreign-owned nuclear weapons inside his country, Canada and the United States reportedly see no alternative to moving some of the aircraft to other bases.

This is because the Canadian aircraft—unlike the jets supplied to NATO by other alliance countries—were constructed to take only nuclear armament.

With the political agreement already signed by Prime Minister Lester B. Pearson, the military of both countries were working towards the "acceptable" arrangement Pearson spoke of when the notes were exchanged with the U.S. government.

At present speculation centres on two possible arrangements.

The first would be to move the "alert" aircraft—planes to be used in any strike role—to bases in Germany and possibly Belgium. Canada already has Starfighters in Germany but not in Belgium.

The second arrangement would involve the very expensive move of shifting the two squadrons in France completely into Germany.

Police said they recovered all but $600 of the stolen money, and expected to find the rest in a bank account.

Muir Creek Fire Out of Control

Fire was reported raging out of control over 100 to 200 acres in the Muir Creek area last night.

The fire was on the lands of the Canadian Puget Sound Logging Company, and company personnel were fighting the blaze, a B.C. Forest Service spokesman said last night.

Ron Jones, ranger in charge of the Langford fire district, was on the scene last night, but no other forest service personnel had at that time been called in to fight the blaze.

SKY GLOWS
The fire's glow in the sky could be seen from Victoria last night, and smoke colored the sunset.

The Canadian Puget Sound company was reported to be moving heavy bulldozer and pumper equipment from its Cayuse Camp to battle the blaze.

The forest service spokesman said people were streaming from Sooke to see the fire, causing a risk that firefighting equipment being moved to the blaze would be impeded by traffic.

STAY AWAY
He appealed for the public to stay off roads in the area.

The forest service spokesman said the cause of the fire was not known.

But other sources indicated the company had for the past couple of days had a "slash fire" burning at the site.

A slash fire is one deliberately set to clear waste from a logged-over area.

CHARLAYNE HUNTER

'Marriage Void'

Georgia Fights Mixed Rites

ATLANTA (AP) — The marriage of Charlayne Hunter, first Negro girl to enter and graduate from the University of Georgia, to a white southerner is void in Georgia, says Attorney-General Eugene Cook.

Miss Hunter, 21, disclosed Monday in New York that she secretly married Walter Stovall, 25, of Douglas, Ga., last spring. She said they are expecting a child in December.

LAW VIOLATED

"They are not married under Georgia law," Cook said Tuesday. "It's unlawful for a white person to marry anyone except a white person, and any marriage in violation of this law shall be void."

Cook said any marriage solemnized in another state by "parties intending at the time to reside in this state" shall have the same legal consequences as though it were solemnized in Georgia.

SEEKS MORE FACTS

The attorney-general said he is investigating to ascertain where the marriage took place.

He said he would submit his findings to the solicitor-general and a grand jury to determine whether the couple may have lived in violation of Georgia's criminal law.

UNIVERSITY BAN

Meanwhile, university officials expressed shock at the marriage. University President O. C. Aderhold said that neither of them would be permitted to enter the university again.

Police Make Ninth Arrest In Robbery

LONDON (AP) — Police announced Wednesday night a ninth arrest in the search into the $7,800,000 raid on the Glasgow-London Express Aug. 8.

Ronald A. Biggs, 34, of Redhill, Surrey, was charged with complicity in the crime.

Four men and one woman are in jail, and two other women and a man are free on bail.

More Troops To Aid UN Grit Offer

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Pearson is expected to offer the United Nations a larger and more flexible Canadian force for UN duty anywhere in the world, informed sources said Wednesday.

Mr. Pearson, who won the Nobel Peace Prize for his instigation of the 1956 UN Emergency Force in Egypt, will go to New York Sept. 17 for opening sessions of the UN General Assembly.

Informants said Mr. Pearson, long an exponent of a world police force, will likely make a concrete offer of military manpower and equipment, possibly at first in private talks with the delegations of other nations.

Bomb, Bullets Rock Birmingham

NEGRO SHOT, DIES

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) — An explosion wrecked the home of Negro leader Arthur Shores Wednesday night and a jeering Negro crowd swarmed through the area. One Negro was shot fatally in the outbreak and at least eight others were taken to hospital.

The rock-throwing crowd of Negroes poured onto the streets near the Shores home within an hour after the second blast there in less than three weeks.

MEET HEAD-ON

Police met them head-on, sealing off a five-block area and firing guns into the air.

There was no identification of the man killed. Nor was there any word on the origin of the fatal shot.

He died at University Hospital shortly after the outbreak occurred. At least one other Negro was shot. A hospital spokesman said the others appeared to have been hit by rocks.

POLICEMEN HURT

Several policemen also were reported injured, none seriously enough for hospital treatment.

At 1 a.m. EDT Police Sgt. H. T. Barron said the crowd was under control. Reporters still heard sporadic gunfire, but Barron identified it as coming from small-calibre pistols fired by residents of the Negro area.

Negro leaders joined with police to try to send the crowds home. They used bullhorns, urging the Negroes to disperse.

Reverse Integration

Steven Fitts, 6, whose mother sent him to all-Negro school in North Little Rock, Ark., Wednesday because it is closer to her home than all-white school, leaves after class with his arm around Edward Jernigan, 7. Steven told his mother he wanted to continue attending class at school, but in meantime Mrs. Fitts has received threatening phone calls about her action. — (AP Photofax)

Driver Kills 'On Orders'

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — A former mental patient was charged Wednesday with killing a Jehovah's Witness on "orders from above" by running him down with a car after forcing a bus filled with sect members to the curb.

The victim in the bizarre case turned down a blood transfusion after being rushed to a hospital, spokesmen said.

FORMER PATIENT

Arrested on suspicion of murder was George Albert Rivera, 38, Los Angeles, who police said was a patient at Camarillo state hospital from 1954-58 for "mental disturbances."

Officers quoted him as saying: "I had orders to stop the buses at all costs, even if I had to kill them."

The victim was Harold Mather, 38, a produce truck worker from Roseburg, Ore., and a delegate to the Jehovah's Witness assembly at the Rose Bowl.

Officials at Los Angeles General Hospital said Mather died at the hospital after he and his wife, Neva, refused to allow doctors to give him a blood transfusion.

Rivera stopped the Greyhound bus, chartered from Coos Bay, Ore., and carrying 38 Jehovah's Witnesses, as it was returning delegates from a session of the Rose Bowl meeting.

Detectives said that the bus driver, Mervin Scaif, 33, Coos Bay, Ore., and Mather stepped out of the bus and Rivera turned his car around and bore down on them.

Police quoted the suspect as saying:

"I had orders from above to stop them and make them stay in their yard. Buses are smog violators."

British Guiana Lifts Emergency

GEORGETOWN, British Guiana (CP) — The state of emergency imposed May 8 on British Guiana in the wake of violence in a general strike was lifted Wednesday by Governor Sir Ralph Grey.

UN Fails in Yemen

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — Secretary-General U Thant reported Wednesday that the United Nations has failed so far to end the rival interventions of the United Arab Republic and Saudi Arabia in Yemen's civil war.

But he denied what he said were irresponsible and reckless charges that poor administration at UN headquarters was to blame for the situation.

Slain Tots' Mother Hunted

CROSSVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — A crowd of several hundred gathered early at a private lake in the mountains near here to watch officers drain the lake in an unsuccessful search for Mrs. John Reed.

Meanwhile, at a pauper's corner in the local cemetery, no one showed up for the burial of Mrs. Reed's two children—four-year-old Rose Marie and two-year-old John Anthony. Their bodies were found Sunday in a septic tank near the lake, not far from the tumbled-down Waldensia resort hotel.

Investigators said the children apparently were strangled months ago, weighted down with a 40-pound stone tied between them, and thrown into the septic tank.

A search is on for the 19-year-old mother and her last known companion, Sammy Earle Ammons, 30, of Knoxville. He is wanted on bad cheque charges.

Mrs. Reed was a baby-sitter for Ammons. She, Ammons and his wife were reported seen several times in the area near the lake.

Agent E. C. Hale of the Tennessee bureau of criminal identification said:

"Some of the officers were sure her body was in the lake. But you can see there's nothing there but mud and turtles and fish."

A shout was raised when a bystander grabbed a squirming, 16-inch smallmouth bass. The vigil turned into a carnival as men and boys slipped and splashed in the reeking water grabbing floundering fish.

Navy Error Cost $1,100,000

WASHINGTON (AP)—The U.S. general accounting office has reported to Congress a navy error in 1957 cost the government $1,100,000 for altimeters that couldn't be used. The navy's bureau of aeronautics did not get approval for frequencies to be used for the radar altimeters and thus the device had to be completely re-designed.

Your Good Health

Departing 'Friends' Just Plain Ignorant

By JOSEPH MOLNER, MD
Dear Dr. Molner: My husband was recently released from a tuberculosis hospital. A couple we considered among our best friends has stopped associating with us. My husband and I are very hurt. What's your opinion?—Mrs. G.R.

Of course you are hurt, but you must realize that your friends, or "former friends" are the victims of ignorance.

A patient is not released from a TB hospital until he or she is known to be non-infectious.

X-ray studies show whether the disease is retarded or arrested. After this comes more exacting examinations.

ALSO STUDIED

Sputum is studied under the microscope. It also is tested in laboratory cultures to see whether the TB germ is present. Concentrated "24-hour sputums" are similarly studied. These are collected over a length of time to avoid the chance that a single specimen might give a negative response, while another a few hours later might be positive. Sometimes stomach washings are also examined as a further safeguard.

The transmitter of tuberculosis is NOT a person who has just been released from a hospital, but one who assumes that he is well and nevertheless has the disease without knowing it. As an added point, the former patient is required to report for routine testing for a considerable time after discharge.

Dear Dr. Molner: Is it true that skim milk is harmful unless some sort of oil is drunk with it?

Can I use mineral oil on the skin as a sun-tan property?—Mrs. W.L.J.

There's no harm in drinking skim milk—and anyway you get fat (or oil) from other diet items: salad oils, butter or oleo, meat, etc.

Mineral oil may cause some thickening of the outer layer of the skin if used over a long period of time. As a sun-tan preparation, it is all right unless you have a very sensitive skin.

Dear Dr. Molner: What about carbon tetrachloride to remove spots from clothing? I've heard it is harmful to some people. Is this true?—Mrs. W.J.

It's a good cleaning compound but is potentially dangerous if exposure is too great. It can cause serious illness. Be sure you have plenty of ventilation to prevent inhaling the fumes. If you have wounds or broken places in the hands, wear rubber gloves.

'Just First Inning'

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Alabama's first desegregation of a white public elementary school was marked by brief disorders in Birmingham Wednesday, but Governor George Wallace, who called the integration "just the first inning," made no effort to interfere.

City police, who swiftly called in special riot squads, quelled cheering outbursts which erupted after two Negro pupils walked through police lines. Six persons were arrested and one policeman was injured.

Wallace, who remained in Montgomery, authorized an aide to say that he would continue "to fight this integration." Later Wallace said the integra-

The daily newspapers in Birmingham said Wallace should not be allowed to close newly-integrated schools.

Two Negro brothers, Dwight and Floyd Armstrong, registered at Graymont Elementary School in Birmingham and left. Classes begin Wednesday and Negroes also are to be enrolled at two high schools under federal court order.

The disorders were short-lived and involved demonstrations by about 100 white persons. City police brought in riot squads armed with carbines and rifles to deal with the demonstrators, most of whom were members of a group known as the National States Rights Party.

Beans Beans Beans

NICE (Reuters)—Soldiers at a nearby French Army barracks were literally fed up with beans. It was beans for breakfast, lunch and snacks, they complained.

So they put their skill as trained commandos to work in raiding the food store and stole dozens of cans of food.

In the dark, they forgot to look at the labels. Their haul was ... beans.

Labor Rejects Wage Curb

BRIGHTON, England (AP)—Britain's organized labor has refused to discipline its wage demands as part of a national effort to plan the nation's economy. Old-line leaders said they do not trust the Conservative government to do the planning.

The union's old guard, with memories of depression and decades of pre-war labor strife, pushed through a resolution at the annual conference of the 1,000,000-member Trades Union Congress rejecting "any form of wage restraint."

Passage of the resolution colored the Labor party's political picture by dimming the moderate image the party has been trying to present for the national elections which must be held in the next year.

The old guard's action also undermined congress general secretary George Woodcock's appeal to speak for industrial labor in bargaining with industry and government in the nation's economic councils.

WANTS ROOM

"I want room to manoeuvre, to talk to the people with power," the Oxford-educated economist who started as a mill hand, he found himself in open conflict with boiler-makers' chief Fred Hill and transport leader Frank Cousins, who came up the hard way through the picket lines.

"We will not have wage restraint, whoever brings it in and wraps it up for us," reported Cousins, whose union's 4,300,000 members had the votes to swing the conference against wage restraint.

"We can't trust any more reactionary Tory governments with our wage packets," said Hill.

Chicken War Goes On

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The U.S. plans to impose higher tariffs on a number of imports even if the Common Market reduces the present high tariff on frozen chickens by 10 per cent, says William Rodd, chairman of a special government committee on trade information.

"A 10-per-cent cut is not enough," Rodd said Wednesday as he presided at the opening of week-long hearings to weigh public reaction to proposed higher rates on some imports selected from 19 products from trucks and buses to gelatin and flower bulbs.

"We want a substantial cut in the European tariff that injured our chicken market overseas," he said, "and by that I mean a lot more than 10 per cent."

Pact No Obstacle To Nuclear Blow

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Senate foreign relations committee said Wednesday it was "entirely satisfied" that the last day treaty would not keep the United States from using nuclear weapons in wartime.

It said advantages Russia might gain by cheating on the pact are "generally not considered to be worth the effort."

The committee made the statements in releasing a report recommending Senate ratification of the treaty as a "net advantage to the United States."

It added that the treaty

"poses no serious risk" to U.S. ability to make a nuclear strike.

U.S. Optimistic

Differences Narrowed Over Columbia Issue

WASHINGTON (CP) — Canada and the United States have narrowed their differences on the long-drawn Columbia River power treaty controversy and an informant said the U.S. government is "very optimistic" that a new agreement on the construction pact may be reached shortly.

This was disclosed here as the Canadian embassy announced that External Affairs Minister Paul Martin will make a two-day visit here Friday to confer with State Secretary Dean Rusk on world problems and to discuss the Columbia River issue with other officials.

CRISIS IN EDUCATION!

VANCOUVER—School opened this week. My daughters were among the thousands of B.C. children who went back to books. I'm proud to see them move ahead. But, like every other parent in our province, I'm worried that their schooling isn't what it might be.

Education in B.C. is in as much a mess as our finances. Our Universities have long been in open war with Bennett. And the concern about B.C. education goes far beyond the Universities.

Many parents worry about the subjects their children study. Some would like the curriculum changed. Our vocational training—the teaching of trades and skills—is nowhere near what it should be. Our municipalities haven't the money they need for new schools and teachers.

I don't like to see Education become a political issue. But Bennett has made it one. The attitude of his government has created a crisis in education, and perhaps has put our children in danger.

We need a new Government attitude towards Education. And you and I can both help bring it about. You have to act first, by voting for your Fulton candidate September 30. Then I, and the very able men with me, will set out to change Government policies on Education.

Betting Against Tax

AS PRESIDENT Kennedy's 15 per cent interest equalization tax proposal grinds its way through congressional procedure—necessary under the U.S. constitution before it can become law—the fact emerges with some significance that the opposition to the tax is nowhere more solid than in the domestic U.S. ranks.

The New York investment industry, leaders of business and commerce are nearly united in believing that for all he is going to gain from it, Mr. Kennedy is making a major mistake in pursuing his objective.

The depth of the opposition is considerably greater than that generated in countries such as Canada where the tax is going to be applied, appear more liable to be hurt by the new act than the U.S. itself.

However, the restriction on the movement of U.S. capital is a double-edged weapon, and one which could be extremely damaging to that country's world leadership, and it is on these grounds that the domestic antagonism to the plan has been expressed before the ways and means committee of the House of Representatives.

It is felt that the tax is not going to cure the problem of the United States dollar crisis, and that its enactment would not be worth the world-wide opposition which it is creating.

In some U.S. political circles it is felt that Congress at some stage or other along the line will talk out the tax proposal and so take the president off the hook in the face-saving way that the U.S. constitution allows its top executive.

However, the fact remains that Mr. Kennedy's tax is just as unpopular as the one which Canada's finance minister Walter Gordon introduced in his June budget and then had to withdraw under massive pressure.

So strong is the feeling that the 15 per cent tax will not become law that many shrewd U.S. investors are now buying Canadian stocks at depressed levels and are gambling on the chance that they will never be asked to pay the 15 per cent tax on their purchase.

In Need of Review

THE CLOSING of liquor outlets on election days in British Columbia could scarcely be called a real hardship on the drinking portion of the population of the province. Elections do not just pop up as a surprise any more than Sundays do; those who cannot stand going dry for a day are forewarned and can lay in supplies.

But some sympathy can be felt nevertheless with hotel keepers who are hoping that the Union of British Columbia Municipalities at its annual convention this month will pass a resolution to ask the government to alter the law. For the hotel men, the dry election days represent not only an economic loss, since non-working staff members have to be paid, but a source of annoyance to their tourist customers.

Nor does there seem to be much warrant in the modern era for the closing of all liquor sources on voting days, at least not in most communities. The time when votes were bought with glasses of beer, and when political feelings were strong enough that drinking partisans were ripe for riot, has surely long gone by.

For that matter, "treating" by candidates or their agents is separately outlawed, and as already noted the more ardent drinkers usually see to their wants in advance. There even is the anomaly, in some municipal elections, of the liquor outlets in one community being closed and those in another, nearby, open.

To the majority of the public, this situation is hardly of great importance. But the law does, as a hotel keepers' representative says, have a horse and buggy aspect, and could well be reviewed in the light of today's circumstances.

Wot, No Bicycles?

FOR THE FIRST TIME in history Canadian members of Parliament have a bigger take-home pay packet than members of the United States Congress—thanks to the new Liberal government.

In setting this pattern for better than equal treatment for our elected representatives, Mr. Pearson should not yet be wholly satisfied. Though our MPs are now among the best paid in the world, the perquisites accorded the head of our government still fall far below those granted the president of the United States.

In the field of official transportation for instance, President Kennedy has at his disposal 10 helicopters, a Boeing jet liner, three other stand-by Boeings on 24-hour call, one Douglas DC6B for airports that cannot take jets, a 21-foot Lincoln Continental car, three other family cars, plus Secret Service cars and a regular fleet of White House vehicles, a special railroad car, three yachts and one racing yawl.

How about it, Mr. Pearson?

"A domestic peace corps is a good idea. It's got you young people a chance to see how the other half lives!"

Astonishing Changes

By RICHIE McEWEN
from Budapest

HUNGARY, a country of the Joy and Merriment," is the title of a handsome printed brochure presented to tourists arriving in Budapest.

Though this claim is open to a good many qualifications, the visitor who remembers the evil days of oppression under Rakosi before the summer of 1956 would indeed find it difficult to recognize the same Hungary in 1963.

In these seven years, there has been a gradual, and systematic transformation from a Stalinist police state, ruled by terror, into a tolerable form of quasi-democracy, and the process is gathering momentum month by month.

There is freedom of speech and the man in the street no longer has to fear summary arrest for some indiscreet remark.

In fact, arrests are so few these days that at least one state enterprise has wofully failed to fulfill its quota of orders under the current plan because of lack of cheap labor from the prisons.

The newspapers give liberal space to readers' letters complaining about the all-too-frequent shortcomings and blunders of state planners and government enterprises, and send reporters to investigate the most blatant cases.

The state television too—there are 400,000 sets in Hungary—runs a regular and highly popular 15-minute feature, entitled "This Does Not Please Us," pointing out mismanagement and incompetence by the authorities.

Political cabarets have also made their reappearance in Budapest and are permitted to poke fun not only at their own politicians but also at the laws of other satellite states.

One program, for instance, announces a "comic song and dance" by Mr. Khrushchev, which is performed by a Budapest artist bearing an astonishing likeness to the Russian leader. This cabaret is patronized regularly by members of the government, including the premier, Janos Kadar.

The farmers, almost all working within a co-operative framework, no longer have to make compulsory deliveries and each co-operative is free to decide how much of the produce should be sold.

It may be disposed of either in bulk to a government purchaser, direct to the public in markets, or even in a shop of its own in a nearby town. In addition each farmer is permitted to own and till his own plot of land and may use co-operative equipment to do so.

In the towns, especially Budapest, almost everything can be had—at a price. There is no longer a black or even a grey market. If you are prepared to pay a stiff price you can buy whisky from Scotland, suiting from England or sent from France.

To own a car no longer requires political pull or a high party number. If you are prepared to pay $2,800 and can put down 20 per cent of the purchase price you can become the proud owner of a brand new Skoda or the French Simca. With wages around $70 a month there are not many who can afford such a luxury, but within the past nine months the number of private cars on the road has increased by a third and traffic is growing heavier month by month.

Hungarians can now get a passport to travel to the West within three weeks with a hard currency holiday allowance of $70 per person and an additional $70 if they are taking a car. This year more than half a million Hungarians went or are going abroad for their holidays, nearly a quarter of these to Western Europe.

As in most other countries on both sides of the Iron Curtain, housing is the biggest headache. Living with "in laws" is standard for most young married couples but the rents of the older apartments and the tasteless new municipal one-room flats are low, generally around $5.50 to $8.40 per month.

The authorities are also building a fair number of self-ownership flats, but these are out of the reach of the great majority. A two-room apartment with kitchen and bathroom costs about $8,400—25 per cent down and the rest spread over 20 to 30 years.

Though the scars left by the uprising of October, 1956, have almost completely disappeared and the bloody revolt is seldom mentioned, every Hungarian is well aware that it is due to this epic bid for freedom that Hungary today enjoys more liberty and national independence than any other country behind the Iron Curtain.

It is expected that Cardinal Mindszenty will have left his present sanctuary in the American legation in Budapest and the country by Christmas.

It is hoped that the United States government will shortly appoint a minister to Hungary and that Britain and other Western countries will follow the examples of Greece and Switzerland and raise their legations to the status of embassies.

Serious efforts are being made too to encourage Western tourists to visit Hungary in larger numbers next summer. While it would be premature to talk about a Hungarian miracle, the changes over the last seven years and in particular in the past six months have been astonishing.

The claim that Hungary is today a country of joy and merriment is certainly not without foundation.

The Birchers

By GEORGE GETZE
from Los Angeles

THE Birch Society and other American rightist groups have their origins in the same kind of confusion and emotionalism that led to the rise of Hitlerism in Germany, a noted Quaker sociologist says.

The sociologist, M. L. Coatsworth of the University of Wisconsin, said the ordinary followers of such movements have in common an irrational fear of the changes that vision people realize are inevitable. They are also angry and frustrated because they seem to have lost control of their own destinies.

The rapid political and social changes that took place one after another in Germany following the defeat in the First World War, and the resulting uncertainty of what the future would bring, were responsible more than anything else for the triumph of the Nazi party, Coatsworth said in an interview.

"None of us can control our own destinies, except in the most limited way," he said. "And the more complicated the world and civilization get, the less control we shall have."

Coatsworth said that even though members of the Birch Society and similar groups may have college and university degrees, they are not what sociologists consider "educated."

"They may have degrees in medicine, engineering, law or some other specialty, but they do not have the historical perspective that is the mark of the truly educated man," he said.

"They have no ability to understand the nature of change, and want to go back to some former time when, they imagine, things were simpler and less worrisome."

How Western civilization develops in the future depends on whether the majority of people can be reconciled to life in a period of permanent change and uncertainty, Coatsworth said, and added that although this will be difficult, it is not impossible.

"What we need to do, amid change and insecurity, is to hold tight to the basic principles of Western man and the Judeo-Christian tradition," he said.

Among the basic principles to which he attaches most importance are our belief in the dignity of the individual man and the exercise of as much individual freedom as is practical in a complex society.

British Shipyards

By ROBERT HELLER
from London

THE other day in Gothenburg, Sweden, a spare, upright man named John Brown received the reward of eight months of working and waiting.

His great Clyde-side shipbuilding company, also John Brown (the names are just a happy coincidence), had finally won a strenuously fought $18.9 million liner order from the Swedish-American Line.

The victory, which would have delighted both John Browns at any time, is very badly needed at this precarious moment.

The work will pull John Brown out of the doldrums which have left the pride of the Clyde with a mere handful of orders—two tankers, two warships and a cattle-cum-people transport for the Far Eastern trade.

Employment at the yard has fallen to 5,000, half its wartime peak, although, in an industry widely slated for conservative ways, Brown's reckons to be very progressive.

Today's formula for shipbuilding is unmistakable—modernize, don't expect profits, give generous credit, and go out for the business.

Ten years of modernization have cost John Brown $14 million; the company went out for the Swedish order with a vengeance.

Two directors even led a team down to the Mediterranean—not too unpleasant an experience—to study one of the Swedish-American cruise liners in action.

In June the yard put in an intensively, lovingly prepared tender. Five yards emerged from the competitive rat-race as possible; three weeks ago John Brown emerged from the five when it was invited to Gothenburg for "consultation."

The most high-powered team ever to leave Clydebank on such a mission went to Sweden, headed by managing director Brown and his two deputies, John Rennie and George Strachan.

None of them speak Swedish, which didn't matter. None of them is in the bright young man category (ages range from 58 to Brown's 62), which didn't matter either. They worked around the clock, determined not to lose this contract.

Brown's Swedish plum is, in fact, not the only fruit that British yards have plucked this year. The flow of big orders is unprecedented since the shipyard slump began in the mid-fifties.

In the first half of the year orders rose to 405,000 gross tons, which almost stopped the shrinkage of the industry's order book. Since June, more than a dozen contracts have been landed, worth about $115 million.

They include $30 million of Admiralty work carefully divided between Clyde-side and Belfast in the interests of the unemployed.

Commercial ship owners, passing through lean times themselves, are less nice about placing their orders. The shipyards' basic trouble is that British owners, who ought to be providing enough steady, comfortable work to keep the yards 70 per cent employed, have not obliged.

A few owners have dared to go abroad with their contracts, and others have simply placed no orders anywhere.

But things were already picking up without benefit of the $84 million government loan scheme (now doubled) to encourage shipowners to give

The Battle for Jobs

By ROBERT HELLER
from London

SHIPBUILDERS some business. Now the so-called Percy Panel Loans—named after Lord Percy, who runs the scheme—are flowing thick and fairly fast.

"Shipowners are like sheep," says one builder hopefully. "One leads and the rest follow."

A $17 million mail-order for the Caymans British and Commonwealth shipping group is the biggest piece of Percy finance to date. The contract went to Swan Hunter, the Tyneside yard which has come forth as the champion of the slump.

The company is run by John Hunter, a dark, efficient 51-year-old who, unlike John Brown of John Brown, gets his title by heredity.

Grandson of the founder, Hunter has spent almost $40 million since the war to make his shipyards the envy of Europe; he now has 14 ships on order, more than any British rival.

Eight of the orders have been landed this year. Hunter and Brown will sharpen their competitive talents on each other if Hunter goes ahead with its plan to replace the Queen Mary by the Q4—an infinitely desirable job, worth three times as much as John Brown's Swedish order.

The Clyde-side firm, with a tradition of Queen-building to defend and a big shipyard to fill, will battle this one out with the Vickers-Swan Hunter combination.

Talk of contracts won and to be won makes a welcome change for the shipyards. But the world-wide shipbuilding depression remains the ruling fact of their lives.

Those who win the orders still measure them in terms of employment (the Swedish one will keep 2,000 Clydesiders busy for two years), not profits.

"I don't think anybody is tendering today," says John Brown in his thoughtful burr, "at a price at which he's going to make any money."

(Copyright, 1963,
The London Sunday Times)

But the real big money is not in the "imported goods." It is in a two-way traffic—the smuggling business from Belem to French and Dutch Guiana. Hundreds of thousands of bags of coffee are smuggled out of Belem every year. The coffee is bought in the south of Brazil, in Santos or Rio, shipped north for "local consumption," and from there to the Guianas.

The smuggler saves himself the official export tax of $19 per bag of 132 lbs. The loss to the dollar-short Brazilian treasury by this tranquil coffee operation alone is estimated at $5 million annually.

Bombs Speak For Freedom Of South Tyrol

By EDWIN BOTH
Colonist European Correspondent

BOLZANO, Italy—Bombs are exploding in Italy's most northern province, Alto Adige—better known as South Tyrol. Tourists have fled. Italy has brought thousands of policemen and soldiers into the area as terror breeds counter-terror.

These are the only bombs exploding in Europe at present. They are terror-weapons of Europe's oldest acute minority problem, which has blazed for 44 years. After more than 40 years of arguments, negotiations, promises, compromises, agreements, accusations and bitterness, it seems no nearer to solution than it was 44 years ago. Now some South Tyroleans, aided by Austrians and probably by Germans, are trying to solve the problem with bombs—and the Italians are trying to hunt down the bomb-planters with ruthless police methods.

It all began in 1919, when the Austrian empire had lost the First World War, and was dismembered. Because Italy was on the victors' side, Austria was forced to give the southern part of its beautiful Tyrol province to Italy. This gave Italy the Alps as northern frontier—and also a tremendously troublesome minority problem.

The German-speaking people of South Tyrol were—and after 44 years still are—Austrian patriots.

Significantly, Austria's greatest hero, the peasant leader Andreas Hofer, who led the Tyrolean peasants' magnificent heroic uprising against Napoleon, came from South Tyrol. He was caught by Napoleon's troops, and executed.

Although dead for 154 years, Andreas Hofer is very important to the South Tyrol problem. The men who plant bombs today claim to follow Hofer.

After 1919, it was Italian government policy to move thousands of Italians into German-speaking South Tyrol, including civil servants and teachers who spoke only Italian. But the 250,000 South Tyroleans refused to learn Italian, or to teach Italian to their children.

Lovely Bozen, the area's local capital—where only German had been spoken since it was founded many centuries ago—was renamed Bolzano. The Italians built a new Italian district to give the town an Italian majority.

Hitler and Mussolini decided to deport the German-speaking South-Tyroleans to Germany. By 1939, some 70,000 of them had been deported from their homeland. But during the war, Germany's deportation facilities were used for deporting Jews to the gas chambers—and most South-Tyroleans remained where they were.

When the war ended, Italy was again on the side of the victors. But it was decided that the German-speaking South-Tyroleans could keep their language and their culture. The peace treaty between the allies and Italy, signed in Paris in 1946, contains an agreement between Italy and Austria, which gives South Tyrol regional self-government, and allows it the German language, German newspapers, and German schools.

Ever since then, Austria and Italy have fought bitterly about the details of that agreement. Instead of self-government for the German-speaking area around Bolzano, it was given to the whole province of Tyrolino, which has an Italian majority.

Two years ago, the first bombs exploded. Police and Italian soldiers were attacked by armed South Tyroleans. The Italians countered with ruthless suppression, mass arrests of suspects, and severe ill-treatment of prisoners.

Now the bombs are exploding again.

Italian Foreign Minister Attilio Piccioni and Austrian Foreign Minister Bruno Kreisky intend to meet in Salzburg soon, and make one more dramatic attempt to agree about South Tyrol. If they fail, the conflict which has blazed in the heart of Europe for 44 years will move to the United Nations general assembly in New York.

BACKGROUND

South Africa Protectorates Seem Safe from Apartheid

By JIM PEACOCK

Opposition to Premier Hendrik Verwoerd's racial-separation practices in South Africa make it almost a foregone conclusion that his suggestion to have his country take over administration of three neighboring British protectorates will be rejected out of hand.

Verwoerd suggested that Britain hold a plebiscite in Bechuanaland, Swaziland and Basutoland to allow the 1,200,000 inhabitants to decide whether they wanted—in Verwoerd's words—to "prosper" as part of South Africa or face "economic decay" under the British.

His proposal would turn the three into so-called "Bantustans," or self-governing all-Negro states along the lines he proposed for sections of South Africa under his apartheid-racial separation policies.

One British source said the proposal is "quite out of court," explaining that the British stand is unaltered from 1954 when Sir Winston Churchill, then prime minister, said the issue of the sovereignty of the three territories was a matter for the territories to decide and the British Parliament to approve.

The same reaction is likely to be common in most parts of the Western world and especially among the newly-independent nations of Africa—but the reason here lies in opposition to Verwoerd's racial policies.

Verwoerd's statement that "Britain may be the guide to their political freedom but it is powerless in respect of their eventual economic freedom" contains certain truths.

Basutoland, with 642,000 residents, is surrounded by South African territory, and Swaziland, with about 300,000 population, and Bechuanaland, with 320,000 inhabitants, border on South Africa. Their geographic locations dictate certain economic dependence on South Africa.

However, the political aspects of the situation are likely to carry more weight today in a world being made more and more conscious of racial problems.

U.S. Millions Won't Help

Diem's Regime Can't Continue

By SPENCER DAVIS

WASHINGTON (AP)—South Viet Nam's former ambassador to the United States said Wednesday no amount of foreign aid can now carry President Ngo Dinh Diem's regime to victory. He called for a new government run by a coalition of men of goodwill.

Tran Van Chuong, who resigned Aug. 22 in protest over the South Vietnamese government crackdown on Buddhist monks and nuns, said the Diem government has irreparably lost the support of its people.

"But no amount of pressure can force it to step down," he said in an interview, and a halt in U.S. aid would lose the country to the Communists.

But "this dilemma is not so insoluble as it may seem," Chuong recalled that Diem himself had overcome formidable opposition when he came to power in 1954 because he then had the support of the South Vietnamese people.

"Now, after nine years of the present unjust and inefficient regime, what all (South) Vietnamese crave is a complete change of the government and the regime."

"The present dilemma can... be solved by a coalition of able men of goodwill, who would firmly stand for national union and reconciliation, justice for all and more efficiency in government."

"Such able men of goodwill are numerous, but have so far been either silenced and reduced to impotence in (South) Viet Nam or oppressed into exile."

When police under President Diem's brother, Ngo Dinh Nhu, raided Buddhist pagodas and rounded up hundreds of monks and nuns Aug. 21, Chuong, 65, and his wife decided to quit their posts. Mrs. Chuong was South Viet Nam's permanent observer at the United Nations. Her husband had been ambassador here nine years.

LEMON HART RUMS ARE IMPORTED

Bananas are not native to Canada... and neither are rum. Lemon Hart, for example, is produced under the most wonderful conditions in The Caribbean. But for Lemon Hart, even that is not enough: It's shipped to London where it rests quietly in underground vaults where neither the temperature nor the humidity varies more than a degree or two year in year out. Then, meticulously blended and bottled it's finally shipped to Canada... smooth, mellow, delicious... a perfect product of that small area of the world that is famous for distinguished rum.

Mays Blames Nobody for His Exhausted Condition

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Willie Mays, the $105,000-a-year centerfielder of the San Francisco Giants, said Wednesday he blames nobody on the National League club because he was hurt in the lineup day after day until forced out by exhaustion on Labor Day.

Earlier Mays had said the team will have to rest him more often if it expects him to go on for several more seasons. "I believe everybody in the organization knows I don't blame them," Mays told The Associated Press by telephone from home where he is resting.

"I like the people I work for." At Candlestick Park after Wednesday's 8-3 win over Houston, Mays said he was completely exhausted since his last game. "I had to play him as long as I could and this year it is tougher than ever. We had only 23 players. Everybody had to play and everybody was tired." Dark referred to the fact the Giants carried two bonus pitchers on their roster of 25, limiting the club's bench strength. "There was no spot where we could take Willie out," Dark added. "Willie just played until he was completely exhausted. We had no way of telling how tired he was."

Mays' resurgent bat had kept the Giants close on the heels of Los Angeles Dodgers until, just before Labor Day, the Dodgers whipped the Giants three out of four games at Los Angeles and plucked them into third place behind St. Louis Cardinals.

Mays collapsed in Cincinnati last September. He bounced back after a short rest and led the Giants to the National League pennant.

VIEWSON SPORT

By Red Smith

For 94 of the 149 days since April 9, the Yankees have occupied first place in the American League. The smothering lead they have held so long was created with Mickey Mantle or Roger Maris or both out of the lineup.

"Suppose," people are saying, "suppose they'd had that pair in there every day. Why, they'd be 25 games in front by now and baseball would be dead as a doornail."

Not so. If Mantle hadn't broken a foot June 5, if Maris had kept his health, if Tony Kubek were never injured and Clete Boyer were free of shanking spells, if Bill Stafford hadn't got a sore arm, if Luis Arroyo hadn't worn out, if Ralph Terry were never erratic and Stan Williams had come up with his sidearm sinker before the season opened—if, in short, Ralph Houk's weightiest decision all summer had involved the choice of sirloin or chops at dinner—you know where the Yankees would be today?

In all probability, right where they are, give or take a couple of victories or defeats.

Curious, but true. Whenever a regular had to be excused, Houk has found another man to do the job. With everybody sound, some of the victories might have been scored more easily than they were, by wider margins. More often than not, though, the Yankees' defeats have been the result of superior pitching, the sort of pitching that probably would have stopped Mantle and Maris the way fine pitching usually stops fine hitting.

Like Bearded Lady

This in no way alters the fact that Houk is, beyond dispute, the manager-of-the-year. He stands out like the bearded lady at a circus. Of that there is no manner of doubt—no possible, possible shadow of doubt—no possible doubt whatever.

Ralph has had the talent, the bench, the depth, the versatility. Why, then, should he be hailed as a great manager? Because he has employed what he had, because of the way he has employed what he had.

A manager has only one job, and it isn't throwing Jim Bouton's fast ball or swinging Poe Pepton's bat. His job is to use the material at hand to the fullest possible advantage. This Houk has done with rare sagacity.

Consider Yogi Berra, the great coach and part-time catcher who was an outfielder last season. He has been employed chiefly to spell Elston Howard in doubleheaders. On a recent weekend, though, the Yankees were facing a right-handed pitcher Saturday and two left-handed starters Sunday. Ralph caught Yogi on Saturday, gave Howard the day off and worked him both games Sunday.

These two, by the way, are Houk's leading hitters, with Howard at .293, Berra .292. Howard also leads in home runs and runs batted in. There isn't a .300 hitter on the team except Mantle, who isn't really on the team.

Everybody Can Play

Consider the many uses Houk has made of Harry Bright and Jack Reed and John Blanchard and Phil Linz. Last year Tom Tresh started as a rookie shortstop and the team was in first place when Kubek returned from the army. Tresh moved to the outfield and helped win the world championship. This year Tom is a centerfielder who would be the team's fourth shortstop, if necessary, behind Kubek, Boyer and Linz.

When Arroyo had to go, Al Downing came up, but not, Houk made it clear, as a relief pitcher. Two days later Downing did work in relief, but since then he has been a starter. One-hitters, two-hitters, three-hitters, he pitches them to order. No commitment of the two-platoon faith, Houk has by necessity platooned his men as freely as Casey Stengel used to do. Players who muttered darkly when Casey shifted them around seem to take it with better grace from the Iron Major, yet the results are the same.

There have been times this summer when another manager might have panicked. Once when Kubek joined the walking wounded, it looked as though one more straw would bring the camel to its knees.

Outwardly, at least, Maj. Houk remained calm, though he was as keenly aware of the danger as anybody else. Nobody knew better than he that the most vulnerable spot was behind the plate, yet he also knew that even if the blow were to fall there, he would still have Blanchard who hadn't caught an inning all year but could do the job if needed. They haven't yet surprised the Major without another shot in his locker.

Stephens Signs For $16,000

TORONTO (CP) — Sandy Stephens, a $100,000-plus problem for Montreal Alouettes, signed a one-year contract with Toronto Argonauts of the Eastern Football Conference Wednesday and declared:

"I'll play anywhere. I'll run back kicks or carry the water bucket."

The 23-year-old quarterback, claimed by Argonauts for the $350 waiver pittance when the Alouettes decided to ditch him earlier this week, signed with Toronto shortly after meeting with Lew Hayman, the club's managing director.

There were no fancy benefits attached to the agreement such as Stephens enjoyed at Montreal. It was a standard contract that was reported to call for a $16,000 salary.

What Stephens' duties would be with the Argonauts was not immediately known, but coach Nobby Winkowski could use him at quarterback, fullback or halfback.

It was considered unlikely that he would be able to fit into the Argo attack well enough to get into the lineup for their next game, against Winnipeg Blue Bombers here Friday night.

Not Losing Daughter Just Gaining Jockey

SEATTLE (AP) — Gerald Hunt, one of the United States' top jockeys, wants a court to end his marriage of less than two weeks on the grounds his bride tricked him into marrying her so he would ride her parents' race horses.

Hunt asked for annulment or a divorce in a complaint filed in superior court Tuesday. He charged that his wife, the former Shirley Taylor, 25, of Renton, Wash., enticed him into the marriage by "feigned love."

Less than a week after their marriage, the complainant said, his bride told him it would be necessary for him to go wherever her parents went. She then left with them last Saturday for Salem, Ore., where her family planned to race their horses.

He said he was under contract to Wayne Branch, a trainer, and is due to race his employer's horses at the Taftman Track in California.

"The turn of events has caused plaintiff great embarrassment," the complaint said. "The thought of being betrayed and used as a tool by the girl he loved has caused him much mental anguish."

Hunt was leading jockey at the Longacres season just ended here.

Season Starts Saturday

AFL Looks to Brighter Future

NEW YORK (AP) — The American Football League this weekend opens the fourth season in its struggle for equal recognition with the old National Football League, with a new city, a new ownership and, hopefully, better balance.

Houston Oilers and Kansas City Chiefs—who operated from Dallas last season—are favored to repeat their playoff game of last year.

But Pop Ivy, the Oilers' coach, said one or both of the division champions in the eight-club league could wind up with a season record no better than 3-5.

Ivy looks for Oakland Raiders and New York Jets; perennial whipping boys, to spring some surprises and balance out the league a bit.

The Raiders get their chance right away. They meet Ivy's Oilers at Houston in one of two Saturday night games that get the season under way.

The Chiefs, who gave up their gate struggle with the Dallas Cowboys of the NFL, travel to Denver for the other Saturday night game.

TWO GAMES SUNDAY There are two more games on tap Sunday. The Jets, with new money, a new coach—Weeb Ewbank, formerly of the NFL Baltimore Colts—and a new name, meet Boston Patriots in one. Buffalo Bills travel to San Diego for the other against the Chargers.

The Jets, who were the Titans of unhappy memory last year, won only one exhibition game—against the Patriots, who didn't win any.

San Diego had the best exhibition record, 4-1, and Buffalo was 3-1.

Vada Pinson Arrested For Shoving Writer

CINCINNATI (AP)—Police arrested Vada Pinson Wednesday night on an assault and battery warrant sworn out by sportswriter Earl Lawson who said the Cincinnati Reds outfielder pushed him in the Reds' clubhouse.

The incident occurred after Philadelphia Phillies beat the Reds, 3-2.

Lawson, sports writer of the Cincinnati Post and Times-Star, said Pinson was angry because of a story in Tuesday's paper. The story said Pinson's "stubborn refusal to capitalize on his tremendous speed by dragging an occasional bunt probably will cost him the National League batting crown this season."

"He grabbed me by my shirt and pushed me against the wall," Lawson said. "I walked away from the clubhouse and found a phone and called the police."

Pinson was taken to police headquarters, booked, and released on $300 bail for appearance in police court Thursday.

Pinson and Lawson also were involved in an incident over an unfavorable story last year. Johnny Temple, then playing for the Reds, also had an altercation with the sportswriter several years ago.

Oshawa To Meet Shamrocks

OSHAWA (CP) — Oshawa advanced into the Canadian junior lacrosse finals Wednesday night defeating Brampton 14-5 to win the best-of-seven final four games to two.

Oshawa will represent eastern Canada against the western winners, Victoria Shamrocks, for the Canadian junior championship and the Minto Cup.

The series starts Monday in Brampton.

Los Angeles Drops Squeaker to Cubs; NL Lead Shrinks

Los Angeles Dodgers, who have been shrugging off tremendous pressure from St. Louis Cardinals, buckled just a bit last night and saw their National League lead shaved to five games.

First the Cardinals applied the heat by winning their seventh straight, 6-5, over New York Mets. Then the Dodgers went out to face the visiting Chicago Cubs in Los Angeles, and went 11 innings to lose, 2-1.

Although that five-game lead still looks solid enough, the Cards are breathing fire and optimism. Starting tomorrow night the Dodgers visit San Francisco for a three-game series while the Cards visit Pittsburgh.

If the third-place Giants, who stomped Houston, 8-3, last

Stamps 'Parochial' Head Lion Charges

VANCOUVER (CP)—The president of the British Columbia Lions charged Wednesday Calgary Stampedeers are being "petty," "childish" and "parochial" in rejecting a B.C. bid for a change of date of a football game.

"They evidently do not realize that the B.C. fans are the most important factor in the financial success of the Western Conference," said Slim Delbridge in an interview.

He was commenting on Calgary's rejection of a B.C. request that the game slated for Monday, Sept. 30—B.C. election day—be played Sunday, Sept. 29 instead. Lions believe the election could hurt attendance.

In Calgary, general manager Jim Flinka of Stampedeers said he had "absolutely no comment."

Young's Lesson $25 and Costs

DETROIT (AP)—Rough-and-tumble National Hockey League defenseman Howie Young paid a fine Wednesday for being drunk and told the judge, "Maybe this will teach me a lesson."

The charge grew out of Young's scrap with three Detroit policemen Aug. 19. Young was given a choice by recorder's criminal court Judge John Scallen: Pay a $25 fine plus $11.90 in costs or spend 90 days in county jail.

The jail term would have kept Young from reporting Monday to Chicago Black Hawk training camp at St. Catharines, Ont.

Of the $11.90, the police will get $6.90 to replace the uniform cap which patrolman Joseph Curto lost in the fight, and the other $5 will replace dishes smashed in the melee at a restaurant.

Young said he had been drinking when he walked into the restaurant where Curto was eating a midnight lunch.

Young snatched a sausage from Curto's plate and ate it. Then Young snatched Curto's cap and Curto went into action. Two other officers joined in the struggle and finally handcuffed Young.

General meeting of the Esquimalt Minor Hockey Association will be held Tuesday at 8 p.m. at Esquimalt Sports Centre.

Registrations are scheduled between 10 a.m. and noon Sept. 7, 14 and 21 at Jubilee Hall, Fraser Street—Parents are requested to register their boys early so that leagues may be formed by Oct. 1.

Youngest boy must be 7 by Dec. 31, 1963. Pee wee pups must be under 10, pee wees under 12, bantams under 14, midgets under 16 and juveniles under 18, all as of last July 31.

Judge's Son NDP Man

VANCOUVER (CP)—John Norris, a UBC history professor and son of Mr. Justice T. G. Norris, said Wednesday he will seek an NDP nomination in Vancouver for the Sept. 30 B.C. election.

Judge Norris formerly was an active member of the Progressive Conservative party.

Perrault Complaint:

Socreds Bought Best TV Time

Liberal leader Ray Perrault has charged in Victoria that Social Credit bought up most of the prime TV time on B.C. stations on the day the writ was issued for the Sept. 30 election.

"We were told that the day the election writ was issued, the government people went in with money in their hands," said Mr. Perrault.

He said he didn't expect the

Treasures Uncovered

ROME (AP)—Italian workers have uncovered a pair of archaeological treasures. Men digging through a hillside near Arona for a national north-south superhighway found the bones of a prehistoric elephant, estimated to be 1,000,000 years old. Men digging a railroad underpass in Foligno found a sarcophagus containing bones and precious stones about 20 centuries old.

Six Children Watched For Sleeping Sickness

Six children in Saskatoon were under medical observation Wednesday for possible sleeping sickness as reports of possible cases in humans and horses filtered throughout the Prairie provinces.

Dr. Michael Yeller, director of Yorkton-Melville health region, reported one definite case of sleeping sickness in a boy and a suspected case in a baby, both at Esterhazy, Sask.

Dr. Matthew Dantow, Saskatoon medical health officer,

Tories Are Waging Hate Campaign Peterson Charges

VANCOUVER (CP)—Education Minister Peterson has charged the Progressive Conservative party is waging a "hate Benett" campaign. He said Conservative leader Davis Fulton's Sept. 30 election campaign can be summed up in the word "hate."

"In my estimation he has chosen a very low road to achieve his ambition of getting to a high place," Mr. Peterson said to a meeting at which he and Alex Matthew were nominated to contest Vancouver Centre again for Social Credit.

"His manifesto is a catalogue of vindictive bitterness. He relies upon defamation of character, deceit and double talk to attain his goal of becoming a Tory premier of this province."

He said the federal Conservative government had "got rid" of Mr. Fulton, first by demoting him to public works minister from justice minister, then by "securing" his resignation. He asked the audience to compare Mr. Fulton's accomplishments with those of Premier Benett.

"We don't need federal rejects to lead us on the way."

ALSO CHARGED

The Liberal leader also charged the NDP got its newest election campaign plank as a result of "blatant plagiarism" from the Liberals.

He was referring to NDP leader Robert Strachan's proposal for a new crown corporation to finance industrial development.

"We've put that forward for the past five years with a notable silence from the NDP," Mr. Perrault said. "This is a classic example of pinching platform planks."

Victorian Urges Appeal In Service Dismissals

BANFF, Alta. (CP) — The civil rights section of the Canadian Bar Association said Wednesday it will study a proposal that a judicial appeal tribunal be established for persons discharged by the armed forces on security grounds.

The decision came after Lloyd McKenna of Victoria described the dismissal of his Conference On Aging In Canada?

LONDON, Ont. (UPI) — Health Minister Judy LaMarsh said Wednesday the federal government is considering calling a conference on "aging," similar to the one President Kennedy held shortly after he took office.

"We in Ottawa are now considering whether it is time for a similar meeting here in Canada to find out what still needs to be done for our older citizens and how to do it," Miss LaMarsh said.

She said it is the government's intention to "extend and expand" all existing assistance to the aged and find new ways of guiding them to a productive and useful role in the community.

client, Eric Peterson, 30, from the Canadian navy.

Mr. Peterson, a former petty officer, was told when he tried to enlist for a third five-year term the navy no longer needed his services.

NOTHING OFFICIAL

Mr. McKenna said no formal or official reason was given but Mr. Peterson was told his application was denied because a relative "had been a member of the Communist party" during the 1950s.

The case first became public when Mr. McKenna asked Defence Minister Paul Hellyer for an explanation and was told by the minister the government "was satisfied a correct decision had been made." The minister later told the House Mr. Peterson's best interests would be served if the matter was not pursued.

Mr. McKenna told the section, meeting in conjunction with the Canadian Bar Association: "By implication there's a blot, or at least a smudge, on Peterson's record, and having gone to the minister, there is nowhere else he can turn."

HEAR APPEALS

Mr. McKenna proposed a court martial's appeal board be established, comprised of federal and provincial judges. He said it should be empowered to hear appeals against discharge on security grounds. Mr. Peterson, an electronics expert in the navy, now operates a hotel in Victoria. He does not want to return to the navy.

TORONTO (CP) — A $50,000 Ford Foundation grant will be used for an investigation of the administration of Canadian universities. Ex-Victorian Killed

Former Victoria shipyard welder Daniel George Robinson, 22, died in the wreckage of his car Wednesday when it went out of control on the Upper Levels highway in North Vancouver.

RCMP said he was going along the highway 400 yards east of Lonsdale when his yellow coupe shot off the highway at 3:45.

It leaped a three-foot ditch and hit a 30 degree grass slope rising to the divided highway's westbound lanes.

The car went up the slope at an angle for 200 feet, flipping end over end four times. It left a trail of fenders, seats, lights, broken glass and its windshield.

Then it rammed an 18-inch high road divider, and bounced into the air. Robinson was hurled to the ground and the car fell on top of him.

A policeman who had been checking doors seven blocks away, said: "I heard him winding up as he pulled away from Lonsdale. It sounded like he was really laying on the power."

Police said Robinson did not have his seat belt on.

U.S. Vote Buying 'Public Scandal'

SEATTLE (AP) — Edward Neelan, president of the U.S. Chamber of Commerce, says he will campaign against what he calls "the wholesale buying and selling of public office."

He told the Pacific School of Bankers:

"Something happened to me in Washington, D.C., four weeks ago that jolted me right down to my very boots and convinced me that we, you and I, and 180,000,000 other Americans who have a stake in good government . . . have an even more urgent business before us now."

NOT CONCERNED

Neelan said he told the National Press Club in Washington that the British press had recently exploited a sex and spy scandal in England, "but that our free press did not seem overly concerned about a far greater scandal that exists here at home—the wholesale buying and selling of public office."

"I suggested that too many of our senators and congressmen . . . were yielding to, yes, very often creating, pressures back home for federal hand-outs for their states, their districts, even for private companies."

"I said this whole vote buying process seemed to me to be immoral."

Reaction astonished him and he had decided to "speak out at every opportunity for a moral reawakening among the American people."

Woman Killed

Police Push Hunt For Death Car

By BOB PETHICK

Saanich police early this morning still thought the hit-and-run car that killed Mrs. Anna Neilson, 470 Thetis Crescent, early yesterday is on Vancouver Island, but the intensive search for the death car has been extended to the B.C. mainland and all United States-B.C. border points.

Police were looking for a white and turquoise 1957 Mercury Montclair which they believe killed the 38-year-old mother of five children and wife of AB Charles Neilson, HMCS Venture.

FATAL DEATH

Saanich police, still piecing together fragments of evidence early this morning, said it was one of the most brutal traffic deaths they had ever investigated.

The body was found in a 20-foot ditch by the Trans-Canada Highway between Burnside and Tillicum about 4:30 a.m. by police Cpl. Robert Peterson. It was so badly battered it was almost unrecognizable. An autopsy disclosed Mrs. Neilson was facing the car that hit her and died instantly.

Police said there was no indication of skid marks at the scene.

Police believe the accident happened about 12:30 p.m.

APPEALS TO DRIVER

Saanich Police Chief W. A. Pearson last night appealed to the driver of the car to give himself up while there was still time.

"In all instances of this type it is to the advantage of the individual to come forward rather than conceal it, not only from the point of view of law enforcement but also from the point of view of living with his own conscience," he said.

"In practically all of these incidents there is no intent. It is accidental and people panic. These things are all taken into consideration. If the responsible party does not come forward, it becomes a heinous crime," Chief Pearson said.

FRAGMENTS LEFT

Saanich detectives arrived at the car's identification conclusion after recovering a fragmentary piece of headlight and some chrome stripping from the scene of the accident.

Mrs. Neilson's death was the third traffic fatality in the Greater Victoria area in 72 hours.

Earlier it was believed the car responsible was a Chevrolet or Pontiac. A car identified as one of those models was seen between Victoria and Duncan by a southbound truck driver. One of the headlights was out.

Police said the right hand side of the car responsible will be damaged, along with the headlight.

Det. Sgt. Joseph Armstrong issued an appeal to anyone knowing of a car of the description showing recent damage to come forward. "All information will be kept confidential," he said.

MET HUSBAND

Mrs. Neilson, who recently began work as a waitress at the Colonial Inn, met her husband after work. They had some drinks, then went to eat. Afterwards, police said, there was a misunderstanding. Mr. Neilson left his wife with the car keys and went for a nightcap.

Det. Armstrong said he believed Mrs. Neilson started walking home instead of using their car.

SPOTTED ARTICLES

An indication that something was amiss first came when CPR truck driver Ronald Ainey of Nanaimo spotted some personal effects lying on the road on his southbound trip. Traffic stopped him from investigating. On his return trip he picked up a purse which he turned over to southbound truck driver Ron Daggett of Nanaimo. Mr. Daggett found matches, money and lipstick on the road.

Police were called but were unable to find anything until Cpl. Peterson discovered the body at the bottom of the ditch.

CARES FOR CHILDREN

Mrs. J. D. Holmes, of Vancouver, Mrs. Neilson's sister, arrived at Belmont Park yesterday to take charge of the five Neilson children until other arrangements could be made.

Mrs. Neilson is survived by her husband, Charles, four sons, John, 15, Charles, 14, Donald, 11, and Jimmie, 2½, and daughter Margaret, 10, her sister, Mrs. Holmes, of Vancouver, and parents, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Anderson, Flin Flon, Man.

A date for an inquest has not yet been set. Funeral arrangements will be announced later.

City Scholars Present Papers

Two Victoria men attended the 16th International Congress of Zoology in Washington, D.C., Aug. 20 to 27.

Dr. Gordon Fields, head of the biology department at Victoria University, and Dr. Arthur Fontaine, associate professor at the university, gave papers on the biology of a squid and the production of mucus of brittle stars, respectively.

A headlight fitting similar to the one inspected by Detective George Walton, left, and Det. Sgt. Joseph Armstrong was on the car that killed Mrs. Anna Neilson on the Trans-Canada Highway early Wednesday morning.—(Bud Kinsman)

In Colonist Cave

By DON GAIN

A cave with seven entrances and a serpentine stream slot was named Colonist Cave for this paper, sponsor of recent expedition to Barkley Sound area by the Vancouver Island Speleological Survey.

Stalactites and stalagmites estimated by expedition leader David Dunnet, Victoria music teacher, to be more than 100 years old, were found in one part of the cave. Smaller ones and other limestone formations were also located.

Twenty to 30 crickets were observed. Two were taken as specimens. They had unusually long antennae, legs more than an inch long, and short stubby bodies. Two millipedes were taken, and a yellow-and-black striped spider one inch long. The spider was found about 50 feet up a crawlway by David Dunnet.

The cave, near Pipestem Inlet, was originally discovered by Victoria contractor Maywell Wickham in 1956, when he was cruising timber for logging. We entered the cave by sliding down a steep slope lush with low-growing kinnikinnick plant. Soon we were exploring cavernous passageways of eroded limestone that twisted and tilted at every angle.

Outstanding feature of the cave is the stream canyon slot, according to expedition co-director, Dr. William Halliday, who came from Seattle with three other experienced speleologists.

A chest and heart surgeon, Dr. Halliday is a veteran speleologist and writer on the subject.

"The stream slot in Colonist Cave is probably the finest one I've been down," he said. "Camp Lena Crystal Cave just outside Sequoia National Park in the Sierra Nevada in California has the same type, although this one is more symmetrical and even."

"You get some rudimentary ones in many caves, but I can't remember one as superbly developed as this. They are distinctly uncommon in the western caves."

It was a spine-tingling walk through this narrow slot. With water swirling around our ankles, we made our way through the slot, which varied from 10 inches to two feet in width.

In places it was just wide enough for our feet turned sideways. In others we had to squirm through irregular walls of limestone.

It was here we had to bend like a figure "7" and do a sideways two-step to get through one opening. And it was here we had to crawl under the egg-shaped boulder that hung from the massive rock to within inches of the cave floor.

At times we could look up from our narrow trench and see the curtain-like ceiling, 20 to 40 feet above us.

While sinuous, the stream's course was pretty much a line from north to south, following a slope.

The stream was formed by two smaller ones which came together about 50 feet from the upper end of the cave at an angle of 45 degrees.

Dr. Halliday estimated the passages on the lower level to be about 300 feet in extent, with some sections five to 20 feet higher up.

"We didn't have time to check all the leads at the lower end."

Stalactites and stalagmites found while only about six inches long, would be more than 100 years old, David Dunnet said.

"This is why we always stress the 'no souvenir' rule," he said. "If everybody took just one, before long there wouldn't be any left for others to see."

Across Harbor

High Span Urged As Truck Route

By IAN STREET

City traffic experts agree the best solution to the problem of routing trucks around the downtown area lies in construction of a high-level bridge linking Victoria West and James Bay.

Ald. M. H. Mooney said the advisory traffic committee reached a conclusion Wednesday that this would have to come "sooner or later."

OFF GOVERNMENT

"There's no question about this being the most workable solution to the problem of a truck route that would keep heavy vehicles off Government and entirely out of the Inner Harbor tourist centre," the chairman said.

The biggest stumbling block remains one of cost, estimated at between $4,000,000 and $6,000,000, for construction of the bridge across the harbor and the highway approaches.

Ald. Mooney said the bridge would not only be used by trucks but would serve a vital purpose in moving government employees to and from work. "In fact it would be a Godsend to all of James Bay," he said.

FURTHER PROBE

The advisory body will make further investigations into possible means of obtaining financing assistance from the senior governments in carrying out the bridge project, the chairman said.

NO ALTERNATIVE

So far traffic experts haven't been able to come up with a practical alternate solution to the truck problem which now causes congestion and noise on Government Street.

The proposed truck route using Store Street, Johnson and Wharf appears to involve a considerable sum for the purchase of property. Tight turns must be made easier so that heavy trailers trucks can negotiate them safely.

KEEP AREA ATTRACTIVE

"Even then, if this money was spent for the property needed to straighten out this proposed route," said Ald. Mooney, "we would not be getting the bulk of this heavy truck traffic off the Causeway and out of the Inner Harbor area. I believe we should make every effort to keep this area as attractive as possible."

Tally-ho Reluctant To Change Route

Operators of Tally-ho sightseeing tours are reluctant to give up the part of their route which takes visitors past Government House and Craigdarroch Castle, a city hall spokesman said Wednesday.

Ald. M. H. Mooney said the suggestion of a change in route was made to representatives of the sightseeing company at a closed meeting of the advisory traffic committee.

The move followed receipt of complaints from residents in the vicinity of Joan Crescent that the slow-moving horse-drawn vehicles were creating a hazard.

"The operators told us this section of their route was important," committee chairman Ald. Mooney said following the meeting. "People want to see Government House and Craigdarroch and this is a big selling point."

The complaints "just don't jibe" with explanations given by operators, Ald. Mooney said. The committee therefore will make a further study before recommending any action to city council.

Stage, Music Festival Starts Next Summer

A summer festival of the performing arts, created by Victorians for Victorians and visitors, will start next summer.

Officials hope the festival will become a continuing event. The first will be four weeks long. Later festivals will be longer.

Mrs. Audrey Johnson, president of the Festival Theatre Society, said Wednesday: "We need a festival to assure continuity of summer entertainment."

"We will encourage the best of Victoria's actors and musicians, funds will be expended in Greater Victoria and the festival will be placed on the level of popular appeal."

MINIMUM COST

Allan Purdy, program coordinator and administrator, gave the minimum cost to permit a sufficiently high standard of production as $43,700.

"With an efficient administration and rigid economy the society should break even after the first year and show a profit at the end of the second season," he said.

"The profits would be plowed back each year to build an ever improving and enlarged festival."

Inquest dates for two Greater Victoria traffic victims were set Wednesday.

The inquest for Harold T. Ford, 20, of 1131 Colville, will be held in McCall's at 10 a.m. today. Ford died Monday, nine days after his car was involved in a rear-end collision on the Trans-Canada Highway near Helmcken. Inquest into the death of Mrs. Gertrude Payne, 88, of 2937 Graham, who died of injuries when she was hit by a bicycle on Hillside Tuesday, will be held in Hayward's at 11:30 a.m. Friday.

MRS. ANNA NEILSON

Three Parties Name Two Newcomers Two Ex-Candidates

By JACK FRY

Two veterans and two newcomers were named to the provincial election battle here last night by the New Democratic Party, the Liberals and the Socialists, while the Esquimalt Progressive Conservatives failed to agree on meeting procedure and had to call another nominating convention.

Oak Bay Social Crediters named Dr. Charles M. Ennals as their candidate for the Sept. 30 provincial election, and ex-Victoria Liberal Association president Geoffrey Ellis, who quit the Liberals in a huff, will be on his campaign team as assistant campaign manager.

His campaign manager will be Justin Harbord, and Tally-ho operator Arthur Knapp will also be on the campaign team. James Audain, who dominated Dr. Ennals, was selected by the candidate as his fiscal agent.

Dr. Ennals, an active member of the Social Credit group for some years and an Oak Bay medical doctor, said in his acceptance speech to 110 Social Credit delegates in the Oak Bay municipal hall that "a vote for either of the splinter parties—the Liberals or the Progressive Conservatives—is a vote for the NDP."

Public Works Minister W. N. Chant told the delegates he could not understand the motives that direct the activities of the opposition parties.

Clamoring for Election

"During the session earlier this year, the Opposition members were all clamoring for an election. Repeatedly they demanded that the government seek a new mandate from the people."

"Now that an election has been called, these same members are running around the province attacking the government for calling it," he said.

COFFEE FROSTIES

Blend Coffee with Fruit For Happy Flavor Treat

Coffee, poured into a tall, ice-filled glass, is delicious all by itself. But perhaps you have no idea how fabulous coffee can be in combination with fruits, liqueurs or ice cream. Many, many flavors join happily with coffee.

COFFEE PEACH SHAKE
One can (1 lb.) sliced cling peaches; 2 teaspoons instant coffee powder; 1/4 cup water; 1 cup light cream; 1/2 pint vanilla ice cream.

Put peaches, coffee powder, water and cream in electric blender. Blend on high speed until thoroughly combined. Add ice cream about one-fourth at a time, blending after each addition. If blender is too full, pour off some of the mixture; this can be returned later when all ice cream has been added. Serve in chilled glasses. Makes about four servings.

CHILLED CAFE A LA CREME
Fill parfait glasses to the brim with chilled ice. Pour in strong, cold coffee, sweetened or not, filling glasses about two-thirds full. If desired, add a dash of liqueur, such as snissette, Cointreau, cognac, rummel, Grand Marnier, maraschino or white cream de menthe. Pour in plain, heavy cream almost to brim. Serve at once.

COFFEE NEW FASHIONED

Place ice cubes in double old-fashioned glasses. Add three tablespoons syrup from canned pineapple spears and one tablespoon maraschino cherry syrup to each glass. Add one pineapple spear, two half slices of orange and one maraschino cocktail cherry to each glass. Fill glasses with strong, ice-cold coffee.

That Man in the Kitchen

Ginger Sugar On Cantaloupe

The wonderful collection of fruits that we see on display nowadays in our stores ensure a continued variety of desserts and give ample scope to the imagination. Melons which are available in profusion make an excellent base of operations. Cantaloupe and honeydew, for example, can be used to great advantage.

The one piece of equipment which can be a great help is a melon scoop and this can be purchased at any hardware store. In addition, a supply of red wine, port, madeira, Kirsch or Cointreau will help immeasurably but is by no means an essential; after all, the addition of any of these wines or liqueurs is a matter of taste.

The cantaloupe which is the sweetest of the melons available lends itself to preparation for the individual serving and can be used as follows:

CANTALOUPE WITH MADEIRA

Allow one half cantaloupe per person. Remove the seeds and filaments. Into each half pour two tablespoonsful of Madeira. Place the cantaloupe halves in the refrigerator and allow to chill before serving.

If you are not interested in Madeira, why not try serving the cantaloupe with ginger sugar which can be prepared easily as follows:

GINGER SUGAR

Mix two tablespoonsful of powdered ginger with six to eight tablespoonsful of finely granulated sugar. Serve with the half cantaloupe.

Cantaloupes With Raspberries or Strawberries or a Combination of Raspberries and Red Currants

Clean the cantaloupe halves as outlined above and using a melon scoop remove the pulp from the melon halves, reserving in a bowl. Add whichever combination of fresh fruit you have available; mix well and return to the melon halves. Add two tablespoonsful of Kirsch or Cointreau or Port. Sprinkle with fine granulated sugar and chill in the refrigerator until ready to be served.

The honeydew melon, a larger variety, can be served in sections, and the addition of lime juice will give this rich melon a wonderful tang. In addition, ginger sugar can be used, although you will often find people who prefer just salt or plain sugar. A good-size honeydew will make a very elegant dessert for four to six people, as follows:

MELON COMPOTE

One large, ripe honeydew. Remove the top third of the melon, and using the scoop, take out the pulp and reserve in a bowl. Clean the seeds and filaments out of the melon and again remove the pulp, using the melon scoop, transferring to the bowl. To the pulp, add one cup of fresh raspberries and one cup of strawberries. Mix well, adding one-quarter of a cup of Kirsch and return to the hollowed half melon. Decorate with sprigs of fresh mint and place in the refrigerator until ready to serve.

The watermelon will provide a wonderful showpiece for any buffet. Use a medium-size melon and again slice off the top third lengthwise. Remove the pulp, using a melon scoop and at the same time eliminate the seeds. Reserve the melon balls in a large bowl and add fresh blueberries, raspberries, strawberries, sliced peaches, sliced nectarines, red currants, gooseberries, or any combination of these fruits. Mix well and return to the watermelon. Add one-quarter of a cup of Kirsch and one-quarter of a cup of Cointreau. Place in the refrigerator until ready to use.

As will be readily seen, any of these recipes will give wonderful scope to imagination, and a great deal of enjoyment can be derived from experiment. However, I would like to emphasize that none of these recipes detracts from the complete satisfaction which can be obtained by taking a large, cold slice of watermelon and, properly attired in a pair of bathing shorts, retreating to some quiet corner and devouring the melon without any of the frills of protocol.

Bon appetit!

Canadians Praised On Elegance

TORONTO (CP)—New York Glove manufacturer John Fuchs complimented Canadian women when he said that 90 per cent of the gloves he sells in Canada are elegant eight-button lengths, while only 60 per cent of his U.S. sales are that length. CONFIDENTIALLY YOURS

—by Byrne Hope Sanders

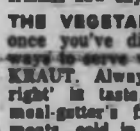

MONTREAL, September 5th—Would you deny your children a university education? Not willingly, of course... but many parents find the financial burden prohibitive. That's why the BANK OF MONTREAL has introduced its University Education Programme. Under this comprehensive, life-insured plan you begin payments two or three years before your children enter university and spread them over as many as nine years. If you have a boy or girl in high school, and you foresee financial problems, I suggest you talk to the people at "My Bank" soon about their University Education Programme.

HERE IS WONDERFUL NEWS for all of you who suffer from neuritic, arthritic or rheumatic pain! I have many, many grateful letters telling me about the long-term relief TEMPLETON'S T.R.C. gives to those who suffer from such pain. Do your joints and muscles ache so that it is hard to get about... or hard to sleep at night? Then try T.R.C. And for double action relief, apply TEMPLETON'S PLAME-cream Liniment externally when you take T.R.C. internally. THE VEGETABLE PART OF YOUR MEALS is no problem once you've discovered the many good ways to serve versatile LIBBY'S SAUERKRAUT.

I'D LIKE TO TELL YOU about a wash-day "wonder-worker" that I, personally, consider a must for a naturally soft, really clean wash... CALGON water conditioner. Not a soap—But a detergent... it does something in the washer that neither soap nor a detergent can do. It actually cleans every washing film—the "bathtub ring" of the washer. Add Calgon with less of your favourite soap or detergent, and see the difference! Soaps and detergents can't get rid of washing film. (In fact, they cause it!) Even bleach won't dissolve it. But Calgon water conditioner gets rid of washing film just... like... that!

Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: Please excuse the mistakes in this letter. I have two black eyes and one of them is completely shut.

I married a man I knew only three weeks. He seemed like such a perfect gentleman I could hardly believe it when he knocked out my pivot tooth on our honeymoon.

He knew his temper over the silliest things. Like last night he hit me because the TV broke down. He said I should "watch those things."

We've been married less than seven months and I've already spent $360 of my own money with the dentist. I've had so many bruises and shiners I've lost count. When I ordered beefsteak from the butcher yesterday he said, "To eat or for your eye?" I'm ashamed to go out in the neighborhood anymore.

Please help me, Ann, but don't tell me to leave him. I love this man. He is truly wonderful between these spells. Thanks a lot.—QUEENIE.

Dear Queenie: So you love the man and you don't want me to tell you to leave him. Fine. Stay with him until he scrambles your brains and puts you in the hospital with a fractured skull.

Perhaps when your money is gone, and your credit at the blood bank runs out, you'll write for some advice you can use instead of telling me what not to tell you.

Dear Ann Landers: I am a college graduate, 27, and have been dating a very beautiful girl since last February. Lila is 21 and she is really terrific. The only thing missing is that she refuses to express an opinion.

Last night the two of us had dinner and instead of going to a movie I suggested a long drive. I wanted to make one last effort to get her to talk about something—anything. Her contribution to four hours of conversation was as follows: "You can say that again." "Well, I'll be darned." "Isn't that the truth?" "And how!" When I asked her direct questions she replied, "I don't know how I feel about that."

Why would a girl be so reluctant to express herself on any subject whatever? Please explain this mystery—STH WONDER.

Dear Sth: Don't look now, Buddy Boy, but the girl is brainless. If she had an idea it would probably give her a headache. And if you can listen to "And how!" "You can say that again." "Well, I'll be darned" for seven months and call the girl "terrific" you obviously do not require intellectual stimulation from your female companions.

Mother Styles Gown

Belmont Avenue United Church was the setting recently when Marilyn Isabella Young and PO Gordon Charles Kenyon, RCN, exchanged wedding vows and rings. Rev. D. B. Sparrow officiated.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Young, 1635 Haultain Street. The groom is the son of Mr. Charles Kenyon, Victoria, and Mrs. E. P. Kenyon, 3137 Jackson Street.

Standards of coral and pink gladiolus and large white chrysanthemums decorated the church for the occasion. Pews were marked with white heather, white bows and streamers.

Organist Mrs. C. H. W. Loughby accompanied the soloist, Mrs. A. Pluym as she sang "The Wedding Prayer."

CLASSIC GOWN

Bride wore a classic floor-length gown of white peau de soie which had been made by her mother. Attendants' gowns and bride's travelling ensemble were also the work of the bride's mother.

Bridal gown featured a bodice of French lace with scalloped V-neckline and lily point sleeves. The full, softly pleated skirt was in train. A chapel length nylon veil misted from a dainty tiara of pearls and aquinas. Tallman roses, white heather, and stephanotis were in the cascade bouquet she carried. Her only jewelry was a gold locket, the gift of the groom.

GOWNED ALIKE

Maid of honor, Miss Sandra Duff, and bridesmaids, Miss Susan Watson and Miss Joan Murphy, were gowned alike in coral satin brocade. Dresses featured a slightly scooped back and wrapped bell skirt. They wore coral whistles held by circles of gladiolus on tone with their cascade bouquets of coral and white gladiolus.

Bill MacDonald was best man and ushers were John Philion and Douglas Jubb. Bride's table at the reception held in Brechin Room at Holyrood House was covered with a lace cloth and centred by a three-tier wedding cake. Bride and groom cut the cake with a Scottish dirk.

BRIDE'S UNCLE

Standards of coral and white gladiolus decorated the reception hall and on guest tables were pale green candles and coral gladiolus.

Uncle of the bride, H. G. Young, proposed the toast to his niece's happiness. Andy Anderson provided piano music.

Leaving on a motor trip through Washington, Oregon and Southern California, the bride wore a blue Blin and Blin sheath with cream topcoat and matching maribou hat. Her accessories were in beige and bone shades and she wore an orchid corsage.

Couple will live in the Dryfhurst Apartments when they return to Victoria.

Beans Get Pickled

By M. V. CHESTNUT, FRES

The summer before last, I told a story in this column about two girls stenographers in New York who threw up their jobs and went into the business of making dill pickles out of green beans.

One of the girls had a recipe for dilled whole beans inherited from her New England grandmother, and this was used as the base for the venture. The pickled beans were packed and labelled attractively and were given an intriguing trade name—Dilly Beans—and met with an almost instantaneous acceptance. The Smart Set in New York, Washington, White Sulphur Springs and Bar Harbor took to them in a big way, and it even became fashionable to serve a Dilly Bean in a martini instead of an olive; you stir your drink with the whole pickled bean, then eat it as an appetizer. The dilled beans are very good with crackers and cheese, too, and out of this world as an accompaniment for cold meat.

Following the appearance on this article, quite a few folks wrote to me for the recipe. I didn't have one at the time, but I managed to get my hands on one eventually and published it in this column, although I have no way of knowing whether it is identical with the one used by the two girls in their highly successful venture. A lot of folks have been urging me this year to repeat the recipe.

To start with, you'll need a quantity of freshly-picked young green beans, nice and straight, plump and crisp but not too bulgy with seeds. Also some heads of dill, small red peppers either dried or fresh, garlic, vinegar, salt and water.

The beans should be picked with a bit of stem attached to serve as a handle when eating. Wash thoroughly and blanch by dunking them in boiling water for two minutes, then pack them upright in sterilized preserving jars with the stems uppermost. To each jar add one small red pepper, one silver of garlic and one head of dill.

Boll together equal parts cider vinegar and water, with one heaping tablespoonful of salt for each cupful of liquid, and add two more heads of dill. When boiling hard, fish out the dill heads and pour the liquid into the jars, filling them to the very top, and seal at once. Your Dilly Beans will be ready to eat in two weeks.

This same idea can be used for making whole dilled tomatoes, and this is a godsend in a way, for tomatoes must reach a certain stage in growth before they develop the ability to ripen, and the end of the season always sees us with a lot of very small ones on our hands which cannot be ripened no matter how you treat them. These can be pickled whole, making a very good and tasty condiment.

Pick off the stems, wash them well, and pack them into hot, sterilized pint jars. Add a small head of dill, a silver of garlic, and one length of celery stalk. Boll together 2 cups of water, 4 cups of vinegar, 1 cup salt and a couple more dill heads. Pick out the dill, pour the solution over the tomatoes, and seal.

Those home gardeners who grow, as we do, the little Fargo Yellow Pear tomato always find themselves with an embarrassing quantity of small green fruits at the end of the season, for these bush-type tomato plants bear so very heavily and continue to set fruit well into the fall. These tiny pear-shaped green tomatoes, not much bigger than a cherry, are especially good for pickling whole in this way.

Hubby No. 4 in the Wings

HOLLYWOOD (NANA)—They say Gloria Vanderbilt has husband No. 4 all warmed up in the pen. A big name... Fredric March bought an apartment at Tower East on East 72nd Street in New York, exactly opposite the National City Bank. Fred's last job before he became an actor was as teller at the National City Bank. Fred has enough money now to buy the place.

Vivien Leigh will have the exquisite Cecil Beaton design her costumes for Night Runners of Bengal. Vivien is pretty exquisite herself and her dancing in Tovarich on Broadway is a delight to watch.

A former screen mate of Tarzan's will be named in the divorce suit of Mrs. James Mason, along with two other fairly young females. "Funny about James," says Pamela, "he was so sedate when I married him, but now that he is 51, he is frisky as all get out." This happens with a lot of men who are 50 or thereabouts. Just look around.

Carol Lawrence makes her first career appearance as Mrs. Robert Gould on the Danny Kaye show this fall on CBS. The newlyweds will make Beverly Hills their permanent home in the house where Eddie Fisher lived with Debbie Reynolds before his doomed marriage to Elizabeth Taylor.

Attention Peter Palmer, I am sure it has escaped your mind, but you forgot to pay chiropractor Dr. Lillian Ryan the $10 you have owed her for three months for the 23 hours she put in removing your corns on a Saturday when she usually rests, but didn't, because you said you couldn't sing since your feet were hurting you so. Lillian has looked after some of the best feet in the theatre, including those of Florenz Ziegfeld, Billie Burke, Lillian Lorraine, Grace Moore and Jean Dalrymple.

George Hamilton does not have to worry about Richard Conte's performance in Act One. All of Richard's footage in the film was burned to a cinder, I am reliably informed. Richard didn't think he could be as good in a repeat and the part was then given to Eli Wallach, who is pretty good in his own right. Jason Robards, Jr., as George Kaufman, must not be overlooked either. Maybe George still has to worry.

Fringe Benefits Outweigh Salary

VANCOUVER (CP)—Social worker James B. Thomson, hired by the city Tuesday as a social work consultant in the health department, will start his new job at $1 a month more than a power shovel operator.

"Money isn't everything. It's the satisfaction one gets out of a job that counts," he said.

Mr. Thomson 39, who has three university degrees, will start at $508 a month compared to $507 for a shovel operator who has no degrees.

He is now employed in the psychiatric wing at Vancouver General Hospital and says his salary is "something less" than he will be making with the city.

He is married to a former public health nurse he met while working in Toronto and has two young boys.

JACK SMITH Battles Savage Nature

Ever Bitten by Weed?

We're in pretty good shape around our house for survival if nuclear war ever brings us to our brave new world.

I read in the paper the other day a panel of experts on atomic warfare had predicted weeds, crabs and insects would have the best chance of surviving the holocaust.

Well, if that's true, our little place is destined to be an oasis in the wasteland.

We've got all the ingredients. We have a one-acre canyon that is given over absolutely to weeds, including one of the healthiest privately-owned forests of poison oak in the western United States.

We have weeds down there that would survive, I believe, even if we were selected as ground zero.

We have tried every poison in Rachel Carson's pharmacopoeia, and our flowers of evil merely spring back more indestructible and uglier than ever.

We have a milkweed which will actually attack a man. I had a terrible fight with one of these psychopathic plants one Sunday afternoon. I won. But when I was burying the thing's body I was overcome by a belief in reincarnation.

And now it's back.

We are also very well stocked with insects. One of the reasons for this is that my younger son is a Hindu. He doesn't believe in killing a living thing, except food. He doesn't mind if the freezer is stacked to the gunwales with pork chops and fillets mignon. But if anyone so much as steps on a centipede, in a moment of whimsy, the welkin is rent with cries of anguish.

Every day this week I have been taking my morning shower with a spider. He nearly drowned the first two days, but then he began to put two and two together. Now, while I'm shaving, he climbs out of the tub and holes up in the soap dish.

I am basically a shy man and don't particularly enjoy the feel of this fellow's gimlet eye upon me as I shower. Last Tuesday I made up my mind to step on him Wednesday. But then I read the story about insects having the best chance to survive.

I couldn't bring myself to step on this chap and wondrously reduce the possibility that life in any form will survive.

I actually had my foot poised over him, having trapped him between the water tap and the soap dish, but I was stayed from an act of fatality by two thoughts.

One was: What would people think of me? The other was the fact that I was barefooted.

I myself don't expect to survive. But if it is my purpose in the nuclear age to husband other species which might survive, I shall not shrink.

Tomorrow I'm going to water the crabgrass. It looks a little sickly.

Lines on Life

Youth Sub-Culture

Vainly Do We Woo Our Children

By DR. STUART ROSENBERG

We no longer share our lives with our children. Indeed, young people today speak a different language and live in different worlds from their elders.

An entire sub-culture has grown up: the Youth Culture, which is "the special culture of those who are between childhood and adulthood" and which "emphasizes disengagement from adult values."

"It is not always explicitly anti-adult, but it is belligerently non-adult... It is an expression of the reluctance of many young men and women to face the unknown perils of adulthood."

In their passion to delay, for as long as possible, their arrival at life's last station, they seem to wish to prolong youthfulness forever. Their cravings are catching, and soon enough we can observe parents appropriating the life-style of their own children.

Parents, unwilling to appear "square" to their children, and lacking a common language with which to communicate a value-system which emerges from a suspect adult world, tend more and more to adopt these superficial patterns of the Youth Culture as their very own. Of their children parents seem to be saying: "If we can't beat them, let's join them! If they won't share our way of life, let us, at least, share theirs!"

But such an unlikely game ends in defeat: we woo our children without really winning them. The life-curve in our society reaches its peak in the middle years—when we are physically strong and attractive—and quickly declines through a lifespan now prolonged by medical science.

In contrast to this, in earlier times, the older a man was the more respect he enjoyed, the higher his community standing. Aging used to mean greater opportunities for participating profitably in a family which shared its concern. Instead of moving away from the centre of family living, children and grandchildren once moved closer to the nucleus. And this, in large measure, was due to the fact that love was not translated into activities or attitudes geared to creating independence or self-centredness in children. On the contrary: the goals of love were related to the building of unceasing loyalty in the family, based upon a reverence for its elders. Love and reverence were compatible.

The growing rejection of "old folks," their being shunted off to live or even to play only with other old folks, is a direct result of our worship of the wrong love-gods. Perhaps we cannot duplicate the social and value structures of the pre-modern world, but we might learn from them.

For in that world children were not left to experience their greatest, most exalted moments only in the company of children—as is so customary in our society. In our time, young people have been excluded too early from the spiritual fellowship of their parents, and forever after, the generations continue to remain strangers to each other.

What children receive from parents through moments of sharing, binds their lives together. But what children receive only as a gift, without a common experience of fellowship with them, too often remains untouched and unopened, however carefully or neatly packaged.

Love depends upon the hour of sharing. If, as it were, we only send it through the mails, it can never be personally received because it was not personally given.

Canadians Remain Isolated

VIENNA, Austria (Reuters) — More than 700 hotel guests remained quarantined in Budapest, Hungary, Wednesday after learning a suspected case of smallpox at the hotel has been confirmed.

Budapest radio Tuesday night reported a waiter at the Hotel Royal was suffering from the disease.

The city was declared a smallpox "infected area" Monday after the waiter was listed by medical authorities as a possible smallpox case.

The radio said examinations showed none of the 220 Western tourists in the hotel—including a number of Canadians and Americans—had the disease.

The quarantine is expected to last two weeks.

The British Embassy in Budapest has identified the Canadians as Lukasz Puskas and Vasch Sheret.

Chief Steward Dies As Fire Sweeps Ship

HAMILTON, Ont. (UPI) — The chief steward of the Egyptian freighter Salah-El Din was killed Wednesday when flames ripped through the crew's quarters as the explosives and cotton laden ship lay at anchor here.

The pyjama-clad body of Mohammed Fazul el-Gazawi, 42, of Alexandria, was found in his bunk four hours after the $500,000 fire started.

Crew members slid down ropes and squeezed through port holes after a dock worker saw flames leaping from the deck of the 8,188-ton freighter. Another element of drama was added when firemen attempted to remove el-Gazawi's body from the freighter. Hysterical crewmen fought firemen for the body.

"I never saw anything like it," said Fire Chief Reg Swanborough. "Apparently, it's a custom of theirs that a man's body must be brought ashore by his mates."

Wingless Bathtub Success

Wingless craft resembling bathtub, designed to return men from space, has flown successfully from Edwards Air Force base in California. The 30-by-30-foot vehicle was towed to 12,000 feet by B-47 craft and each time U.S. space agency pilot Milton Thompson glided it to landing. Broad, rounded undersurface provides "lift" and enables it to glide. Craft, called M-2, has rounded nose, square stern and is controlled by twin fins at stern. —(AP Photos)

Village Depleted By Fair Tragedy

HUMLIKON, Switzerland (UPI) — Gaiety and laughter in Humlikon ended Wednesday with the crash of a Swissair Caravelle twin-jet airliner which killed 80 persons, 43 from Humlikon.

For weeks the farmers in this village had saved their money for their first plane ride to Geneva to visit an agricultural samples plant.

Laughing, joking and singing, 43 persons — nearly a quarter of Humlikon's population — boarded a bus for Zurich and the flight to Geneva.

NINE MINUTES

They filed aboard the plane in Zurich, smiling in anticipation for the flight that lasted nine minutes and ended in death. The crash was the first major disaster in the 32-year history of the airline.

These left behind in Humlikon stood in tiny groups, shaking their heads in disbelief. Humlikon consists of only 43 families, 200 inhabitants in all. The victims of the fiery crash, about 20 miles from Zurich, including 19 married couples — belonged to 24 families. Five of them were bachelors or men traveling without their wives.

MAYOR AND COUNCIL

The mayor died in the crash. So did all members of the village council. The village scribe was on the plane as was the commander of the village fire brigade.

"But the children, the poor children. My God, what are they going to do?" sobbed the aged mother of one of the villagers who died.

When the 19 married couples died they left behind 42 children, 28 of them under the age of 16. The fathers or mothers of eight other children died in the crash.

Most of the men who remained behind were out in the fields. Their wives said they had no time to listen to the radio during the day.

It was at lunchtime, in this village, when news of the tragedy arrived.

The children had just come home from morning lessons.

The local government representative arrived from the nearby township of Andelfingen, and quietly told the just-orphaned children, relatives and friends of the crash. The village immediately went into mourning.

Church bells were rung in Andelfingen-Humlikon is too small to have a church of its own. Classes were cancelled for the afternoon and for the immediate future.

Only reluctantly did the men left behind go out to the fields again in the afternoon.

The wives, now dressed in black, either huddled outside or stayed in their red or white gabled houses.

Noise Law Delays Record Jet

SYDNEY, Australia (UPI) — A Qantas jet airliner with 152 British emigrants aboard arrived Wednesday from London in 24 hours — 12 hours faster than normal airline time.

Authorities made it circle the field for 30 minutes because noise abatement rules prohibit landings before 6 a.m. The incident ended with a quiet landing.

Zoo Became Jungle

NEW YORK (UPI) — The zoo's baculic areas were quieter than usual, on a blustery day following the holiday weekend.

But at 11:05, the peaceful atmosphere was shattered and the zoo became a jungle setting for human violence.

In a gun battle lasting five minutes and 75 shots, three would-be bandits lost out in their attempt on a $50,000 bundle of holiday receipts.

They were ambushed by the ice cream vendors, street cleaners, animal keepers and other

To the casual eye, there was nothing out of the ordinary in the scene at the Bronx Zoo up until 11:05 a.m. Tuesday. The disguised members of a 50-man platoon of policemen.

The zoo battle left one bandit dead and another critically wounded. A third was captured after a futile escape attempt in the getaway car.

The police trap, one of the most elaborate ever staged in the city, was organized after detectives received a tip a zoo truck carrying cash receipts would be held up.

The tip — reportedly given by underworld foes of the three holdup men — was confirmed last Friday when detectives saw three men driving around the zoo apparently casing the area.

The truck actually carried only a "nominal" amount of cash, police said.

Doukhobor Starved But No One Blamed

CHILLIWACK (CP) — A coroner's jury ruled Wednesday that Hans of Freedom Doukhobor Paul Podnarrow died of starvation during a hunger strike. The jury attached no blame.

Podnarrow died in hospital here Aug. 23 after being moved from Agassiz Mountain Prison. The hunger strike involved more than 100 sons; the others now are accepting liquid nourishment, providing a cup is lifted to their mouths.

Motorist Permitted Business Driving Only

Bernard Nicholls, 3665 Raymond, was fined $100 in city magistrate's court Wednesday on a dangerous driving charge and allowed to keep his driver's licence for business purposes only.

In earlier testimony court was told Nicholls was clocked along Government and Douglas Street at a high rate of speed by a city police sergeant and a constable.

William Moresby, 624 Trutch, was found guilty of attempted suicide and released on his own recognizance on a $100 bond to keep the peace for six months.

Charged with breaking and entering in connection with a break-in of the laundry room at McMillan's Hotel and Restaurant, 617 George, Joseph John James Mika, 909 Kings Road, was remanded until Sept. 6 after entering a plea of guilty.

Roy Mundy Fisher, 1502 Davie, was given a month in jail on a charge of obtaining goods with a worthless cheque when he appeared in Oak Bay court. The sentence is to be added to a six-month sentence already being served on charges in the city.

Redhead Lucky To Live

CAMPBELL RIVER—A tough little redhead named Douglas Sloan has just one wish—he wants to go out and play.

What the three-year-old doesn't understand as he lies in hospital here is that he is lucky to be alive following an accident Sunday involving his mother's car.

MOTHER'S CARE

He ran to his mother's car and tried to open the back door as the car pulled away but was somehow dragged along with the vehicle.

He suffered a fractured skull, a bone chip entered the brain, five ribs were broken, one of them puncturing a lung and his arms and legs were battered with bruises.

FRANTIC MOTHER

Yet, when his frantic mother, Mrs. Dorcas Sloan, stopped the car to rush him to hospital, all Douglas asked was: "Why are you crying Mommy?"

Said Mrs. Sloan: "I don't know how he lived—but I thank God for sparing him."

She said she heard the boy strike the car and stopped because she thought she had a flat.

SOON POSSIBLE

"He was sitting on the road, covered with blood. I got him to hospital as soon as I could."

Dr. John Ross and the hospital staff operated immediately on his head and lung and Douglas was reported in good condition today.

Saanich Building Booming

An August boom in construction activity boosted Saanich's eight-month building permit total to an all-time high of $11,342,129—$322,292 higher than the municipality's previous year-long record of $11,019,837 set in 1958.

Construction was also on the upsurge in the municipalities of Oak Bay and Esquimalt last month.

The three municipalities issued building permits worth a total of $1,451,928 in August, bringing the eight-month total in those areas to $16,360,785.

100 PERMITS

The Saanich building inspector issued 102 building permits valued at $758,301 in August, including 37 permits for single family dwellings worth $491,700.

The municipality's eight-month total now stands at 867 permits worth $11,342,129, of which 355 were for dwellings valued at $4,893,689.

22 PERMITS

Oak Bay gave 32 permits worth $377,760 in August, including five for houses valued at $93,500. This brought the eight-month total to 273 permits worth $1,593,526, of which 36 were for houses valued at $640,686.

Last year, Oak Bay issued 26 permits worth $105,149.50 in August, of which six were for dwellings valued at $95,300. The eight-month total that year was 286 permits worth $1,360,723.50, including 61 for houses worth $1,120,930.

$400,000 DOWN

Esquimalt was only about $400,000 down from its eight-month total in 1962, which turned out to be a record year with a figure of $2,318,506, said building inspector William Edgington.

Seventeen permits worth $353,867 were issued in August, of which four were for houses valued at $54,642. A $275,000, 39-suite apartment building on Lampton Street and a $30,000 warehouse more than made up for the drop in construction of single family dwellings, he said.

Bob Hope Here For Fishing

Comedian Bob Hope is heading for east coast Vancouver Island fishing waters aboard Max Bell's yacht Campana.

In a Vancouver book store this week, the dean of Hollywood actors gave an impromptu plug for Victoria.

When he autographed a copy of his new book for Victorian Valerie Druce, he told her and everyone around: "I like Victoria. I like that Oak Bay golf course."

Cowichan Bay, Northwest Bay, Qualicum and Campbell River waters are expected to be targets for fishing.

Five Conventions

Battle Begins

By JACK FREY

While five nominating conventions here chose their candidates last night, a score of other names loomed on the election front as other parties sought new blood to win the favor of the voters in the Sept. 30 provincial election.

The Progressive Conservatives in most constituencies here seemed to be waiting to hand-pick their nomination candidates.

Some observers thought it might be because B.C. Tory leader E. Davie Fulton is keeping a tight rein over the various conventions.

Other parties were reaching out to woo the best candidates they can possibly field in the election, and some newcomers seemed likely to enter the picture.

Social Credit incumbents in Victoria, Works Minister W. N. Chant, J. Donald Smith and Waldo Skillings appeared to be facing a fight for renomination, as Ald. Millard Mooney—defeated federal Socred candidate—said he would enter the fray.

Ald. Mooney said he expected six or seven other Social Crediters to contest the nominations, in the convention which will be held at Club Sirocco, 1037 View Street, at 8 p.m. tonight.

Well-known city furniture dealer Bruce Humber was seen as a possible contender in the Victoria Liberal Association race, along with former city alderman Michael Griffin, lawyer Herbert Matthews, Times' women's editor Eliza beth Forbes, Harold Oatson—who was Robert Oatson's campaign manager in the April federal election, and Oak Bay realtor Jack Mears who fought David Groos and Foster Isherwood for the Victoria nomination in the federal election.

The Victoria Grit convention will be held in the War Amps hall at Oak Bay Junction, at 8 p.m. Monday.

It is believed that the Victoria New Democratic Party will have at least six hats in the ring for their convention in Woodsworth Hall, 721 Courtney Street, at 8 p.m. today.

NOMINATION

Victoria NDP provincial constituency president Harry Fanthorpe, a city machine shop operator, will seek nomination. Ald. A. W. Toone and Oak Bay High School teacher David Reimer are also expected to be in the running.

In the Esquimalt Socred constituency, no opposition was seen against incumbent MLA Herbert Bruch. This constituency will hold its nominating convention in the Colwood community hall at 8 p.m. tonight.

Ferry Service Agrees To Strikers' Demands

The B.C. government ferry service yesterday agreed to the demands of some 60 crew members who staged a six-hour wildcat strike at Nanaimo on Tuesday.

The dispute was settled as the result of a three-hour conference between B.C. Government Employees Association Secretary Ed O'Connor and ferry service general manager Monty Aldous.

TO OCT. 1

The ferry service agreed to extend the employment of a summer crew to Oct. 1 in order to avoid a transitional schedule period, in which remaining crews would have had to work 19 days before getting a day off.

The ferry service had planned to lay the crew off Sept. 15.

Striking crewmen at Nanaimo caused the cancellation of six sailings on Tuesday.

A ferry service spokesman said there will be no disciplinary action against the men who staged the wildcat walk-out.

He said they were suspended at the time for refusal to take the ships out, but the suspension was lifted when they agreed to sail six hours later.

Mr. Aldous broke the Tuesday deadlock by flying to Nanaimo and assuring the men their grievance would be the subject of talks the following day.

First meeting yesterday was between Mr. O'Connor and the civil service commission.

The commission advised the BCGEA spokesman to take the case up with ferry service management as a first step.

In a press release following the final meeting, Mr. Aldous said the dispute arose through lack of understanding of the intentions of the ferry service.

YEAR AROUND

He said he and Mr. O'Connor agreed the ferry service was endeavoring to provide year-round employment for its permanent crews and that it was necessary for them to put in longer hours during the busy summer months in order to compensate for more time off during the slack winter season.

Caouette Announces Creditistes Party

QUEBEC (CP) — Real Caouette, deputy national leader of the Social Credit party, emerged from a meeting with 14 Quebec Social Credit MPs Wednesday night to announce that a new party, le Ralliement des Creditistes, has made its appearance on the national scene.

"Eventually we will attempt to make this a national party and take it across Canada to protect French-Canadians in every province," Mr. Caouette said in a press conference after a four-hour meeting.

He said he had the support of 13 Social Credit MPs, named 12 and said one is to be announced later.

A few minutes earlier, two Quebec MPs, who earlier announced their support of National Leader Robert Thompson of Social Credit, walked out of the caucus of Quebec members called by Mr. Caouette as leader of le Ralliement, until now the Quebec Social Credit wing.

FOLLOWERS

Mr. Caouette said the following supported him: Charles Gauthier, Robertval; Gilles Grogan, Lapointe; Gerard Perron, Beauce; Gilbert Roudeau, Sherbrooke; Gerard Laprise, Chapleau; Pierre Boutin, Dorchester; Henri Latulippe, Compton; Robert Beaulieu, Quebec East; Charles Dionne, Kamouraska; L. Madame Nhu Charges U.S. With Spying

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (UPI) — South Viet Nam's powerful Mme. Ngo Dinh Nhu suggested Wednesday the United States withdraw some of its civilian aid personnel because she has the "impression" that some of them are U.S. Central Intelligence agents.

Madame Nhu, beautiful and sharp-tongued sister-in-law of President Ngo Dinh Diem, told newsmen at a press conference at the Gia Long presidential palace that President Kennedy is incorrect if he assumes that the Diem government has lost touch with the people.

"If President Kennedy really said that . . . it shows the American government is absolutely misinformed."

Saanich Draftsman Dead at Parksville

Chief draftsman with Saanich municipality, Charles Albert Wigley Goodman, 58, of 828 Pandora, died, apparently from drowning, at Parksville Tuesday night.

Mr. Goodman's body was found floating in about two feet of water at Edgewater Park Auto Camp and was pulled ashore by an unidentified man and woman.

He and his wife, Eva, had just started a holiday at the beach resort.

Dr. D. M. Peterson of Parksville and Fire Under-Chief William Wheeler pronounced him dead.

An autopsy will be carried out by Dr. R. S. Clarke, regional pathologist in Nanaimo. Qualicum RCMP are investigating the case and an inquiry will be held by Coroner Russ Inkster.

Mr. Goodman was born in London, England. Besides his wife, he leaves a daughter, Phyllis, and a sister, Mrs. Earle Grey, both in England.

Funeral arrangements have not been completed.

Canadians May Leave French Soil

OTTAWA (UPI) — Negotiations to provide U.S.-owned nuclear warheads for Canadian CF-104 Starfighter aircraft now based in France are likely to take several months and may end with at least part of the two squadrons moving off French soil, informed sources said Wednesday.

Barring an unlikely change in President Charles de Gaulle's refusal to permit foreign-owned nuclear weapons inside his country, Canada and the United States reportedly see no alternative to moving some of the aircraft to other bases.

This is because the Canadian aircraft—unlike the jets supplied to NATO by other alliance countries—were constructed to take only nuclear armaments.

ALREADY SIGNED

With the political agreement already signed by Prime Minister Lester B. Pearson, the military of both countries were working towards the "acceptable" arrangement Pearson spoke of when the notes were exchanged with the U.S. government.

At present speculation centres on two possible arrangements.

The first would be to move the "alert" aircraft—planes to be used in any strike role—to bases in Germany and Canada already has Starfighters in Germany but not in Belgium.

The second arrangement would involve the very expensive move of shifting the two squadrons in France completely into Germany.

Police said they recovered all but $600 of the stolen money, and expected to find the rest in a bank account.

Muir Creek Fire Out of Control

Fire was reported raging out of control over 100 to 200 acres in the Muir Creek area last night.

The fire was on the lands of the Canadian Puget Sound Logging Company, and company personnel were fighting the blaze, a B.C. Forest Service spokesman said last night.

Ron Jones, ranger in charge of the Langford fire district, was on the scene last night, but no other forest service personnel had at that time been called in to fight the blaze.

SKY GLOWS

The fire's glow in the sky could be seen from Victoria last night, and smoke, colored the sunset.

The Canadian Puget Sound company was reported to be moving heavy bulldozer and pumper equipment from its Cayuse Camp to battle the forest service spokesman said people were streaming from Sooke to see the fire, causing a risk that firefighting equipment being moved to the blaze would be impeded by traffic.

STAY AWAY

He appealed for the public to stay off roads in the area.

The forest service spokesman said the cause of the fire was not known.

But other sources indicated the company had for the past couple of days had a "slash fire" burning at the site. A slash fire is one deliberately set to clear waste from a logged-over area.

Police Make Ninth Arrest In Robbery

LONDON (AP) — Police announced Wednesday night a ninth arrest in the search into the $7,800,000 raid on the Glasgow-London Express Aug. 8.

Ronald A. Biggs, 34, of Redhill, Surrey, was charged with complicity in the crime.

Four men and one woman are in jail, and two other women and a man are free on bail.

SEEKS MORE FACTS

The attorney-general said he is investigating to ascertain where the marriage took place.

He said he would submit his findings to the solicitor-general and a grand jury to determine whether the couple may have lived in violation of Georgia's criminal law.

UNIVERSITY BAN

Meanwhile, university officials expressed shock at the marriage. University President O. C. Aderhold said that neither of them would be permitted to enter the university again.

FORMER PATIENT

Arrested on suspicion of murder was George Albert Rivers, 38, Los Angeles, who police said was a patient at Camarillo state hospital from 1954-58 for "mental disturbances."

Officers quoted him as saying:

"I had orders to stop the buses at all costs, even if I had to kill them."

The victim was Harold Mather, 38, a produce truck worker from Roseburg, Ore., and a delegate to the Jehovah's Witnesses assembly at the Rose Bowl.

Officials at Los Angeles General Hospital said Mather died at the hospital after he and his wife, Neva, refused to allow doctors to give him a blood transfusion.

Rivers stopped the Greyhound bus, chartered from Coos Bay, Ore., and carrying 38 Jehovah's Witnesses, as it was returning delegates from a session of the Rose Bowl meeting.

Detectives said that the bus driver, Mervin Scalf, 33, Coos Bay, Ore., and Mather stepped out of the bus and Rivera turned his car around and bore down on them.

Police quoted the suspect as saying:

"I had orders from above to stop them and make them stay in their yard. Buses are among violators."

NEGRO SHOT, DIES

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP)

— An explosion wrecked the home of Negro leader Arthur Shores Wednesday night and a jeering Negro crowd swarmed through the area. One Negro was shot fatally in the outbreak and at least eight others were taken to hospital.

The rock-throwing crowd of Negroes poured onto the streets near the Shores home within an hour after the second blast there in less than three weeks.

MEET HEAD-ON

Police met them head-on, sealing off a five-block area and firing guns into the air.

There was no identification of the man killed. Nor was there any word on the origin of the fatal shot.

He died at University Hospital shortly after the outbreak occurred. At least one other Negro was shot. A hospital spokesman said the others appeared to have been hit by rocks.

POLICEMEN HURT

Several policemen also were reported injured, none seriously enough for hospital treatment.

At 1 a.m. EDT Police Sgt. H. T. Barron said the crowd was under control. Reporters still heard sporadic gunfire, but Barron identified it as coming from small-calibre pistols fired by residents of the Negro area.

Negro leaders joined with police to try to send the crowds home. They used bullhorns, urging the Negroes to disperse.

MRS. ANNA NEILSON
... died instantly

Dragnet Out
As Car Flees
Death Scene

By BOB PETHICK

Saanich police early this morning still thought the hit-and-run car that killed Mrs. Anna Neilson, 470 Thetis Crescent, early yesterday is on Vancouver Island, but the intensive search for the death car has been extended to the B.C. mainland and all United States-B.C. border points.

Police were looking for a white and turquoise 1957 Mercury Montclair which they believe killed the 38-year-old mother of five children and wife of AB Charles Neilson, HMCS Venture.

NEUTAL DEATH

Saanich police, still piecing together fragments of evidence early this morning, said it was one of the most brutal traffic deaths they had ever investigated.

The body was found in a 20-foot ditch by the Trans-Canada Highway between Burnside and Tillicum about 4:30 a.m. by police Cpl. Robert Peterson. It was so badly battered it was almost unrecognizable. An autopsy disclosed Mrs. Neilson was facing the car that hit her and died instantly.

Police said there was no indication of skid marks at the scene.

Police believe the accident happened about 12:30 p.m.

APPEALS TO DRIVER

Saanich Police Chief W. A. Pearson last night appealed to the driver of the car to give himself up while there was still time.

"In all instances of this type it is to the advantage of the individual to come forward, rather than conceal it, not only from the point of view of law enforcement but also from the point of view of living with his own conscience," he said.

"In practically all of these incidents there is no intent. It is accidental and people panic. These things are all taken into consideration. If the responsible party does not come forward, it becomes a heinous crime," Chief Pearson said.

Saanich detectives arrived at the car's identification conclusion after recovering a fragmentary piece of headlight and some chrome stripping from the scene of the accident.

Mrs. Neilson's death was the third traffic fatality in the Greater Victoria area in 72 hours.

Earlier it was believed the car responsible was a Chevrolet or Pontiac. A car identified as one of those models was seen between Victoria and Duncan by a southbound truck driver. One of the headlights was out.

To Hospital

Seven tots, aged 11 months to five years, were admitted to Royal Jubilee Hospital poison centre yesterday, all within an hour.

A brother and sister, aged 11 months and two years, swallowed Drano, one 15-month-old youngster swallowed solvent, and four, aged two to five years, ate laburnum seeds.

The brother and sister were admitted to hospital with severely burned mouths and the others were treated and sent home.

400-Lot
Project
Urged

PORT ALBERNI — Plans to develop about 400 first-class residential lots in the north east part of the city were suggested to council in a report from general superintendent Len Crowshaw.

Mr. Crowshaw's report referred to the area bounded by King Street and North Park Drive east of 17th Avenue.

In presenting the report Ald. George Fouldard expressed interest in the development and said that he and Mr. Crowshaw are planning a trip to Courtenay to study the city's land assembly project.

SEWER, WATER

"This area is the natural one to develop because it has sewer and water mains already provided," the superintendent's report stated. "The lots could be developed over a five to 10-year period at approximately 40 to 80 lots per year."

"This would not strain the city finances too heavily nor would it flood the local real estate market as 80 lots are slightly less than our normal yearly increase."

"In order to develop these lots in an orderly fashion we would require professional advice on sewers, drains, water, subdivision plans, roads, parks, etc."

PAVING, CURBS

"We could also look at such features as underground wiring, asphalt paving, curbs and sidewalks included in the cost of the lots."

"Work could proceed on the area between Wallace and King Street, Kendall Street to 21st Avenue this winter. This area contains approximately 72 lots."

Trapped in Car
Driver Drowns

ALBERNI—A 40-year-old man died in his car submerged in the water of Rogers Creek at high tide just before 12:30 a.m. Wednesday morning. Two other occupants of the vehicle escaped.

John Charles Anscombe, a bartender, 808 Ninth Avenue North, Port Alberni, was dead when his car was raised from the water. Efforts to release him from the vehicle before it was raised had failed.

In the meantime, quick action on the part of Lorne Major, Victoria, and Fred Freeman, Vancouver, staying at the nearby Tidebrook Hotel, and of an RCMP constable, saved the life of Mrs. Elizabeth Dinadale, Gaunier Road, Alberni.

INTO WATER

Major and Freeman went into the water to bring out the unconscious Mrs. Dinadale. The policeman applied mouth-to-mouth respiration and got a pulse. An inhalator was used to complete the work of reviving the woman, who was taken to West Coast General Hospital.

Reginald Lealiso, 811 Fourth Avenue North, Port Alberni, believed to be a non-swimmer, was able to make his own way to shore. He, too, was taken to hospital. Both were reported in satisfactory condition later in the day.

NEAR CHECKERBOARD

The car, which had apparently been driven south on Margaret Street, crashed over an embankment near a checkerboard which marks the end of Margaret Street at Pemberton Road. At low tide there is a mere trickle of water in the creek at this time of year.

Cheap Work
No Part Of Welfare

PORT ALBERNI—The suggestion that council favored a "work for welfare" plan which would bring back the 20-cent-an-hour days of the 1930s was hotly denied by Ald. William Goddard at council meeting.

He referred to letters to the editor of a local paper and said that he wanted to make it clear that in backing Courtenay Mayor William Moore's stand on the matter, council had taken it for granted that any work performed by welfare recipients would be at the going rate.

He emphasized that in supporting the plan in principle, council had no idea other than that able-bodied men only would be required to work.

Fair Success
At Cobble Hill

COBBLE HILL — Autumn sunshine and a crowd of at most people from here and other Vancouver Island parts favored the 54th annual Cobble Hill Fall Fair, which was officially opened yesterday by Lieutenant-Governor George Pearkes.

The old-type country fair drew an abundant indoor display with field produce, vegetables, fruit, flowers, domestic science, arts and handicrafts and outdoor livestock shows. (See results on Page 30.)

A large part of the livestock judging included 4-H classes with the 4-H Cobble Hill community and visiting clubs participating.

A horse show with English and western sections concluded the event last night.

Fair officials described it as "successful, with great public interest." Some of the organizers were: John Balme, H. S. Thuijler, Sir Allan Mackenzie, J. Ashkham, Miss R. Rea; Mrs. E. M. Blake, R. B. Moulton, William Bell and Miss M. M. Meirose.

Not Everyone Pleased With Disputed Overpass

NANAIMO—"What's going to stop some of the kids from falling over the thing?" This is one of numerous similar comments from one of the residents around this area over the controversial Jingle Pot overpass.

Another complained: "It's a crazy idea. Now everyone else will want one." Another business woman living in the same area: "It's stupid."

Other people interviewed had a similar comment to make.

The ones who are exhilarated with the whole idea apparently are the mothers who have children attending the Mount Benson school.

Meanwhile, work progresses and until the overpass is built and the last workman leaves, Bill Jones of the highway crew escorts his young proteges back and forth across the highway to and from school.

Bonner Lime Plant Provides
Farmers with Vital Soil Aid

By KLAUS MUENTZER
COWICHAN VALLEY—For the past 18 years Norman Bonner with the product from his Cobble Hill Lime plant has provided farmers on Vancouver Island with lime.

Returning from the Second World War, Mr. Bonner decided to make use of a lime deposit on the family-owned 32 acres of land at a mountain near Cobble Hill.

At first quarrying the lime rock was a modest operation with a small gas motor and a daily output of about six tons. The plant gradually reached the present capacity of 16 tons per day.

The smaller motor has been replaced by a heavy duty diesel which drives powerful crushers. For the past seven years trucks have been hauling lime rock from the Bamberton quarry.

Although the majority of the output—the total is about 1,500 tons a year—is used on the island by farmers, some lime is sold to a Victoria firm for a putty product, some is taken by a Vancouver chemical company and a smaller quantity is shipped to coal mines at Cumberland to settle coal dust and reduce the danger of explosions.

Bob Hope
Here
For Fishing

Comedian Bob Hope is heading for east coast Vancouver Island fishing waters aboard Max Bell's yacht Campana.

In a Vancouver book store this week, the dean of Hollywood actors gave an impromptu plug for Victoria.

When he autographed a copy of his new book for Victorian Valerie Druce, he told her and everyone around: "I like Victoria. I like that Oak Bay golf course."

Cowichan Bay, Northwest Bay, Qualicum and Campbell River waters are expected to be targets for fishing.

Mr. Bonner said his plant, now employing another man beside himself, is concentrating on Vancouver Island, as a bigger enterprise on Texada Island, with two to three quarries, covers the lower mainland demand.

The Cobble Hill plant's main customers are large feed firms and co-ops supplying farmers or the latter come themselves to pick up the important soil neutralizer—lime.

Soil samples can be forwarded to any district agriculturalist or directly to the field crops branch, department of agriculture at Victoria.

Ferry Service Agrees To Strikers' Demands

The B.C. government ferry service yesterday agreed to the demands of some 60 crew members who staged a six-hour wildcat strike at Nanaimo on Tuesday.

The dispute was settled as the result of a three-hour conference between B.C. Government Employees Association Secretary Ed O'Connor and ferry service general manager Monty Aldous.

TO OCT. 1

The ferry service agreed to extend the employment of a summer crew to Oct. 1 in order to avoid a transitional schedule period in which remaining crews would have to work 19 days before getting a day off.

The ferry service had planned to lay the crew off Sept. 15.

Striking crewmen at Nanaimo caused the cancellation of six sailings on Tuesday.

NO ACTION

A ferry service spokesman said there will be no disciplinary action against the men who staged the wildcat walk-out.

He said they were suspended at the time for refusal to take the ships out, but the suspension was lifted when they agreed to sail six hours later.

Mr. Aldous broke the Tuesday deadlock by flying to Nanaimo and assuring the men their grievance would be the subject of talks the following day.

First meeting yesterday was between Mr. O'Connor and the civil service commission.

The commission advised the BCGEA spokesman to take the case up with ferry service management as a first step.

In a press release following the final meeting, Mr. Aldous said the dispute arose through lack of understanding of the intentions of the ferry service.

YEAR AROUND

He said he and Mr. O'Connor agreed the ferry service was endeavoring to provide year-round employment for its permanent crews and that it was necessary for them to put in longer hours during the busy summer months in order to compensate for more time off during the slack winter season.

Stream Slot Finest Found

By DON GAIN

A cave with seven entrances and a serpentine stream slot was named Colonist Cave for this paper, sponsor of recent expedition to Barkley Sound area by the Vancouver Island Speleological Survey.

Stalactites and stalagmites estimated by expedition leader David Dunnet, Victoria music teacher, to be more than 100 years old, were found in one part of the cave. Smaller ones and other limestone formations were also located.

Twenty to 30 crickets were observed. Two were taken as specimens. They had unusually long antennae, legs more than an inch long, and short stubby bodies. Two millipedes were taken, and a yellow-and-black striped spider one inch long. The spider was found about 50 feet up a crawlyway by David Dunnet.

The cave, near Pipestem Inlet, was originally discovered by Victoria contractor Maywell Wickham in 1934.

was cruising timber for logging. We entered the cave by sliding down a steep slope lush with low-growing kinnikinnick plant. Soon we were exploring cavernous passageways of eroded limestone that twisted and tilted at every angle.

Outstanding feature of the cave is the stream canyon slot, according to expedition co-director, Dr. William Halliday, who came from Seattle with three other experienced speleologists.

A chest and heart surgeon, Dr. Halliday is a veteran speleologist and writer on the subject.

"The stream slot in Colonist Cave is probably the finest one I've been down," he said.

"Camp Lena Crystal Cave just outside Sequoia National Park in the Sierra Nevada in California has the same type, although this one is more symmetrical and even."

"You get some rudimentary ones in many caves, but I can't remember one as superbly developed as this. They are distinctly uncommon in the western caves."

It was a spine-tingling walk through this narrow slot. With water swirling around our ankles, we made our way through the slot, which varied from 10 inches to two feet in width.

In places it was just wide enough for our feet turned sideways. In others we had to squirm through irregular walls of limestone.

It was here we had to bend like a figure "7" and do a sideways two-step to get through one opening. And it was here we had to crawl under the egg-shaped boulder that hung from the massive rock to within inches of the cave floor.

At times we could look up from our narrow trench and see the curtain-like ceiling, 20 to 40 feet above us.

While sinuous, the stream's course was pretty much a line from north to south, following a slope.

The stream was formed by two smaller ones which came together about 30 feet from the upper end of the cave at an angle of 45 degrees.

Dr. Halliday estimated the passages on the lower level to be about 300 feet in extent, with some sections five to 20 feet higher up.

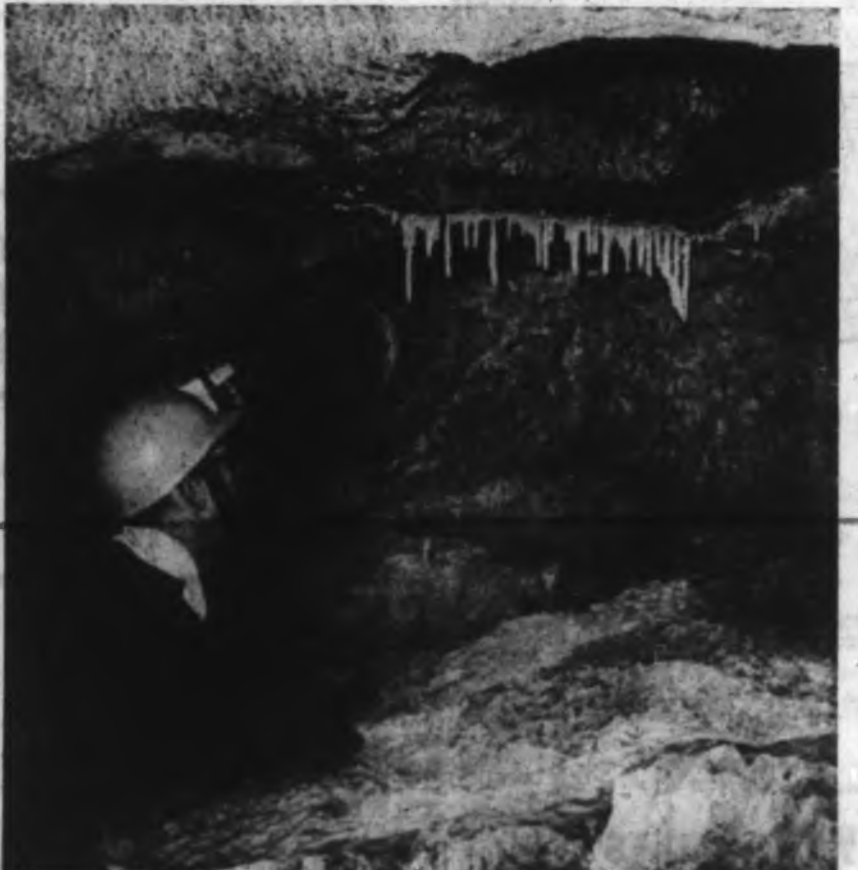

"We didn't have time to check all the leads at the lower end."

Stalactites and stalagmites found while only about six inches long, would be more than 100 years old, David Dunnet said.

"This is why we always stress the 'no souvenir' rule," he said. "If everybody took just one, before long there wouldn't be any left for others to see."

Convict Asks Tourism Aid

EDMONTON (CP) — A man who describes himself as an Edmontonian "away for a few years" has asked the Alberta government to help him settle an argument with some new acquaintances.

The man, Prisoner 20738 at the federal penitentiary in St. James, Wash., requested brochures and pamphlets to convince his fellow-convicts that Canada is not a land of icebergs, igloos and wild west cowboys.

Caouette Announces Creditistes Party

QUEBEC (CP) — Real Caouette, deputy national leader of the Social Credit party, emerged from a meeting with 11 Quebec Social Credit MPs Wednesday night to announce that a new party, le Ralliement des Creditistes, has made its appearance on the national scene.

"Eventually we will attempt to make this a national party and take it across Canada to protect French-Canadians in every province," Mr. Caouette told a press conference after a four-hour meeting.

HAS SUPPORT

He said he had the support of 13 Social Credit MPs, named 12 and said one is to be announced later.

A few minutes earlier, two Quebec MPs, who earlier announced their support of National Leader Robert Thompson of Social Credit, walked out of the caucus of Quebec members called by Mr. Caouette as leader of le Ralliement, until now the Quebec Social Credit wing.

FOLLOWERS

Mr. Caouette said the following supported him: Charles Gauthier, Roberval; Gilles Gagnon, Lapointe; Gerard Perron, Beauce; Gilbert Rondeau, Sherbrooke; Gerard Laprise, Chateaugay; Pierre Boutin, Dorchester; Henri Latulippe, Compton; Robert Beaulieu, Quebec East; Charles Dionne, Kamouraska; L. Madame Nhu Charges U.S. With Spying

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (UPI) — South Viet Nam's powerful Mme. Ngo Dinh Nhu suggested Wednesday the United States withdraw some of its civilian aid personnel because she has the "impression" that some of them are U.S. Central Intelligence agents.

Madame Nhu, beautiful and sharp-tongued sister-in-law of President Ngo Dinh Diem, told newsmen at a press conference at the Gia Long presidential palace that President Kennedy is incorrect if he assumes that the Diem government has lost touch with the people.

"If President Kennedy really said that . . . it shows the American government is absolutely misinformed."

Saanich Draftsman Dead at Parksville

Chief draftsman with Saanich municipality, Charles Albert Wigley Goodman, 56, of 828 Pandora, died, apparently from drowning, at Parksville Tuesday night.

Mr. Goodman's body was found floating in about two feet of water at Edgewater Park Auto Camp and was pulled ashore by an unidentified man and woman.

He and his wife, Eva, had just started a holiday at the beach resort.

Dr. D. M. Peterson of Parksville and Fire Under-Chief William Wheeler pronounced him dead.

An autopsy will be carried out by Dr. R. S. Clarke, regional pathologist in Nanaimo. Qualicum RCMP are investigating the case and an inquiry will be held by Coroner Russ Inkster.

Mr. Goodman was born in London, England. Besides his wife he leaves a daughter, Phyllida, and a sister, Mrs. Earle Grey, both in England. Funeral arrangements have not been completed.

Canadians May Leave French Soil

OTTAWA (UPI) — Negotiations to provide U.S.-owned nuclear warheads for Canadian CF-104 Starfighter aircraft now based in France are likely to take several months and may end with at least part of the two squadrons moving off French soil, informed sources said Wednesday.

Barring an unlikely change in President Charles de Gaulle's refusal to permit foreign-owned nuclear weapons inside his country, Canada and the United States reportedly see no alternative to moving some of the aircraft to other bases.

This is because the Canadian aircraft—unlike the jets supplied to NATO by other alliance countries—were constructed to take only nuclear armament.

ALREADY SIGNED

With the political agreement already signed by Prime Minister Lester B. Pearson, the military of both countries were working towards the "acceptable" arrangement Pearson spoke of when the notes were exchanged with the U.S. government.

At present speculation centres on two possible arrangements.

The first would be to move the "alert" aircraft—planes to be used in any strike role—to bases in Germany and possibly Belgium. Canada already has Starfighters in Germany but not in Belgium.

The second arrangement would involve the very expensive move of shifting the two squadrons in France completely into Germany.

Police said they recovered all but $600 of the stolen money, and expected to find the rest in a bank account.

Muir Creek Fire Out of Control

Fire was reported raging out of control over 100 to 200 acres in the Muir Creek area last night.

The fire was on the lands of the Canadian Puget Sound Logging Company, and company personnel were fighting the blaze, a B.C. Forest Service spokesman said last night.

Ron Jones, ranger in charge of the Langford fire district, was on the scene last night, but no other forest service personnel had at that time been called in to fight the blaze.

SKY GLOWS

The fire's glow in the sky could be seen from Victoria last night, and smoke colored the sunset.

The Canadian Puget Sound company was reported to be moving heavy bulldozer and pumper equipment from its Cayuse Camp to battle the blaze.

The forest service spokesman said people were streaming from Sooke to see the fire, causing a risk that firefighting equipment being moved to the blaze would be impeded by traffic.

STAY AWAY

He appealed for the public to stay off roads in the area.

The forest service spokesman said the cause of the fire was not known.

But other sources indicated the company had for the past couple of days had a "slash fire" burning at the site. A slash fire is one deliberately set to clear waste from a logged-over area.

'Marriage Void'

Georgia Fights Mixed Rites

ATLANTA (AP) — The marriage of Charlyne Hunter, first Negro girl to enter and graduate from the University of Georgia, to a white southerner is void in Georgia, says Attorney-General Eugene Cook.

Miss Hunter, 21, disclosed Monday in New York that she secretly married Walter Stovall, 25, of Douglas, Ga., last spring. She said they are expecting a child in December.

LAW VIOLATED

"They are not married under Georgia law," Cook said Tuesday. "It's unlawful for a white person to marry anyone except a white person, and any marriage in violation of this law shall be void."

Cook said any marriage solemnized in another state by "parties intending at the time to reside in this state" shall have the same legal consequences as though it were solemnized in Georgia.

SEeks MORE FACTS

The attorney-general said he is investigating to ascertain where the marriage took place.

He said he would submit his findings to the solicitor-general and a grand jury to determine whether the couple may have lived in violation of Georgia's criminal law.

UNIVERSITY BAN

Meanwhile, university officials expressed shock at the marriage. University President O. C. Aderhold said that neither of them would be permitted to enter the university again.

LONDON (AP) — Police announced Wednesday night a ninth arrest in the search into the $7,800,000 raid on the Glasgow-London Express Aug. 8.

Ronald A. Biggs, 34, of Redhill, Surrey, was charged with complicity in the crime.

Four men and one woman are in jail, and two other women and a man are free on bail.

Police said they recovered all but $600 of the stolen money, and expected to find the rest in a bank account.

Driver Kills 'On Orders'

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — A former mental patient was charged Wednesday with killing a Jehovah's Witness on "orders from above" by running him down with a car after forcing a bus filled with sect members to the curb.

The victim in the bizarre case turned down a blood transfusion after being rushed to a hospital, spokesmen said.

FORMER PATIENT

Arrested on suspicion of murder was George Albert Rivera, 38, Los Angeles, who police said was a patient at Camarillo state hospital from 1954-58 for "mental disturbances."

Officers quoted him as saying: "I had orders to stop the buses at all costs, even if I had to kill them."

The victim was Harold Mather, 38, a produce truck worker from Roseburg, Ore., and a delegate to the Jehovah's Witness assembly at the Rose Bowl.

Officials at Los Angeles General Hospital said Mather died at the hospital after he and his wife, Neva, refused to allow doctors to give him a blood transfusion.

Rivera stopped the Greyhound bus, chartered from Coos Bay, Ore., and carrying 28 Jehovah's Witnesses, as it was returning delegates from a session of the Rose Bowl meeting.

Detectives said that the bus driver, Mervin Scalf, 33, Coos Bay, Ore., and Mather stopped out of the bus—and Rivera turned his car around and bore down on them.

Police quoted the suspect as saying: "I had orders from above to stop them and make them stay in their yard. Buses are among violators."

UN Fails in Yemen

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — Secretary-General U Thant reported Wednesday that the United Nations has failed so far to end the rival interventions and Saudi Arabia in Yemen's civil war.

But he denied what he said were irresponsible and reckless charges that poor administration at UN headquarters was to blame for the situation.

Investigators said the children apparently were strangled months ago, weighted down with a 40-pound stone tied between them, and thrown into the septic tank.

A search is on for the 19-year-old mother and her last known companion, Sammy Earle Ammons, 30, of Knoxville. He is wanted on bad cheque charges.

Mrs. Reed was a baby-sitter for Ammons. She, Ammons and his wife were reported seen several times in the area near the lake.

Agent E. C. Hale of the Tennessee bureau of criminal identification said:

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP)

— An explosion wrecked the home of Negro leader Arthur Shores Wednesday night and a jeering Negro crowd swarmed through the area. One Negro was shot fatally in the outbreak and at least eight others were taken to hospital.

The rock-throwing crowd of Negroes poured onto the streets near the Shores home within an hour after the second blast there in less than three weeks.

MEET HEAD-ON

Police met them head-on, sealing off a five-block area and firing guns into the air.

There was no identification of the man killed. Nor was there any word on the origin of the fatal shot.

He died at University Hospital shortly after the outbreak occurred. At least one other Negro was shot. A hospital spokesman said the others appeared to have been hit by rocks.

POLICEMEN HURT

Several policemen also were reported injured, none seriously enough for hospital treatment.

At 1 a.m. EDT Police Sgt. H. T. Barron said the crowd was under control. Reporters still heard sporadic gunfire, but Barron identified it as coming from small-calibre pistols fired by residents of the Negro area.

Negro leaders joined with police to try to send the crowds home. They used bullhorns, urging the Negroes to disperse.

Slain Tots' Mother Hunted

CROSSVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — A crowd of several hundred gathered early at a private lake in the mountains near here to watch officers drain the lake in an unsuccessful search for Mrs. John Reed.

Meanwhile, at a pauper's corner in the local cemetery, one showed up for the burial of Mrs. Reed's two children—four-year-old Rose Marie and two-year-old John Anthony. Their bodies were found Sunday in a septic tank near the lake, not far from the tumbled-down Waldensia resort hotel.

Investigators said the children apparently were strangled months ago, weighted down with a 40-pound stone tied between them, and thrown into the septic tank.

A search is on for the 19-year-old mother and her last known companion, Sammy Earle Ammons, 30, of Knoxville. He is wanted on bad cheque charges.

Mrs. Reed was a baby-sitter for Ammons. She, Ammons and his wife were reported seen several times in the area near the lake.

Agent E. C. Hale of the Tennessee bureau of criminal identification said:

"Some of the officers were sure her body was in the lake. But you can see there's nothing there but mud and turtles and fish."

A shout was raised when a bystander grabbed a squirming, 16-inch smallmouth bass. The vigil turned into a carnival as men and boys slipped and splashed in the receding water grabbing floundering fish.
